INTRODUCTION TO VOLS. III., IV., AND V.

HAVING by the continuous helpfulness and generous willinghood of PREBENDARY HAYMAN, of Douglas Rectory, near Cork—who a goodly number of years ago, had publicly pleaded for the printing of the “Lismore Papers”—made the Notes and Illustrations of the new volumes completing the First Series even fuller and more inclusive of noticeable things than the former, as well as added a minute verbal index of them, it does not seem needful to occupy much space by way of another Introduction. The characteristics and values of Volumes I. and II. belong equally to Volumes III., IV., and V.; and, indeed, nearly all the things to which special attention was called in our first Introduction, receive further illustration in the new volumes, as will more distinctly appear when the whole of these materials are turned to account in a full Life of the “Great Earl,” to be prefixed to the Second Series of the “Lismore Papers” (Deo volente). But besides,—as the Index to the entire Notes and Illustrations reveals,—there are abundant new Facts and Acts and Events and Circumstances, and light and shadow of individual and national Lives. Looking back on the whole, and holding in recollection these transparently truthful and unlaboured Diary entries, the "Great Earl" and his contemporaries LIVE before one in such reality and naturalness as place the "Lismore Papers" alongside or little beneath the more famous 'Diaries' of SAMUEL PEPYS and JOHN EVELYN, and the WRAXALL and similar publications. Speaking for myself, the character of this eminent Englishman,—the first Earl of Cork,—grows on the thoughtful reader of these Papers. He comes out right well from the complexities and diplomacies of a not very great period. With all his astonishing success and aggregate of wealth, his human-ness, his great-heartedness, his kindliness, his tender tact towards "poor widows" and other unfortunates, his open-handed liberality, and his inestimable personal oversight of everything that claimed in any way his care, are perpetually illustrated. Not less to be accentuated is his (perhaps over-much) generosity to his King, his fecundity of plan and resource in developing the material prosperity and the immaterial welfare of his adopted country—e. g., schools and churches and manifold endowments. It makes one in our present-day "perilous times" sigh to think how different an Ireland might have been and must have been if ironworks and fisheries, manufactures and applied science and art, by resident proprietors, had been carried forward on the lines of the Earl of Cork.

I resist the temptation to dwell on not a few matters that I had marked for commentary. As above, these will come in more fittingly hereafter—e. g., the rementioning of 'Plays' (vol. iv., pp. 6, 147), and 'Masks' (vol. iv., p. 23), and 'Archie Armstrong the King's Jester' (vol. iv., p. 191), and the 'Harp' (vol. v., pp. 61), makes me feel afresh how culpable has been the neglect of historians of the Drama, of the Irish Theatre, and to resolve that, sooner or later, more shall be found out on it. So, too, minor entries, as of 'the great Golde Ring' (vol. iv., p. 121). Meantime, with renewed heartfelt acknowledgment of how much, directly and indirectly, I owe to Prebendary Hayman, and also to Miss Rowan (as before) for her laborious and painstaking copying-work on very irksome and difficult manuscripts, I close this little Introduction with a transcript of those fly-leaf entries mentioned in foot-note in vol. i., pp. 1-6. They thus run :—

	My halfe yeares Rent due to his Ma ^{ty} .
Nota, my	first my Seigniory w th the North Abbey of	} ^{ech} xvij ^l ^{vij^d} ob.

These are so badly written, and in such faded ink, and so confusedly by intermixture of old and newer, that they really have been guessed at rather than confidently deciphered. There are other entries of rents to the Lord Bishop of Waterford; but it is impossible to make them out. Practically all are superseded by entries in the places in the Diary. But I have here to put right an unaccountable little oversight of the copyist in respect of the second motto placed above these memoranda. It ought to have been thus given—

Heer is nothing wanting, But wil to learn.

How 'wanting' dropped out I cannot imagine.

From the over-extent of Volumes I. and II., caused by (1) giving the entire MSS. in integrity—i. e., not omitting the legal and other family entries, as first intended and announced ; (2) the unexpectedly matterful Notes and Illustrations ; and consequent excess of cost over receipts, it was found inevitable to distribute into five instead of four volumes : such extension having been semi-anticipated by our use in the original Prospectus of the word "approximate" in respect of such estimate. Cancel title-pages are accordingly furnished for this First Series of the "Lismore Papers" as in five volumes. And so, 'gentle Reader,' with your leave, congratulating all concerned on the completion of a somewhat onerous task, I gird myself to the Second Series, assured that it will in nowise come short of the First Series, and that together these "Lismore Papers" will constitute a permanently valuable contribution to materials for our great historic literature. I ask all to join in re-thanks to his Grace the Duke of Devonshire for having thus confided to my unreserved disposal his priceless Irish Family MSS.

LANDED at the Rings end the ffryday, and dyned at Thomascourt with the L. deputy, at which night the L. chancellor came from monaster evan to Dublin.

3 20. The third the lo. wilmott would haue persuaded me to goe to St Mary abbey to the L. chancellor ; which, for reasons to him given, I refused : That day the Lo. chancellor sent his son in law, M^r Robert Merrydeth to congratulate my safe arrivall, & I sent my servant Badnedg to present my thancks and service to his Lo^p.

4 20. My lo. wilmott renewed his perswasions to goe first to the L. chancellor, which after I hadd given reasons to the contrary, afterwards as we were going to church (after the L. chancellor and my self had mett at my L. deputies at Thomascourt, and civill salutacons had enterchangeably past between us) the lo. wilmott towld me my lo. chancellor after sermon in thafternoon was ended, would give me meeting in the counsell chamber ; and thither we cam from church, and there all the companie being owted, the lo. wilmott delivered me the Kings lettres to me directed, saying he had delivered his Ma^{ty}s lettres to the lyke effect to the L. chancellor before, which his Lo^p acknowledged. And then vsing some perswacons to that reconciliacon, which the King had comaunded, & whervnto I was prepared, we both (in the Lo. wilmotts presence onely) made our reconciliacon, with many protestacons to forgive and forgett all former wrongs and vnkyndnesses, & to be thencforward loving and faithfull ffrends, and to Ioyn Really in the Kings service; which I beseech god, his Lo^p observe as Rele-geowsly as I resolve to doe, if new provocacons enforce me not to alter my resolucons. Heer the boxe was opened, and the L. chancellor took theestablishment & all home with him.

5. The lo. chancellor and I mett in thafternoon at Thomas-court, and there we presented to the Lo. Deputy the Kings lettres for passing our pattent of the government and delivering up of the Kings sworde vnto vs, in which the L. chancellor prest the lo. deputy for expedicon.

10. I gaue vnto the M^r of the Kings ship called the 9th whelp, x^{li} ster: as my reward to be distributed amongst the shipp companie, to the Capⁿ a payre of ritch gloves, fringed and embrodered with gold, which I had of thearle of Antrym, and I gaue my wife to give him a wrought night capp of black silck & gowld.

10. I paid the M^{rs} [masters] and owners of the two barcks that I freighted at westchester to transport my men, my horses, & goods to Dublin xvij^{li}, & to warnyngham, whose barck I hyred for my own transportacon (had not the Kings shipp come to me), 40^s, in all 20^{li}.

1 20. This daie M^r Robert Kenedie, M^r Henry Staynes, and Barnabie Tottenham did paie vnto Sir Nicholas whyte the some of one Thowsand and ffowr hundreth pownds english for the redempcon of the new abbey neer Kilcullen bridge, and the castles & lands of Cre Ewstace, in the Countie of Kildare, mortgaged by Sir James Carroll, Sir Addam Loftus, & M^r Robert Kennedy, esqr., to Sir Nicholas whyte for 1400^{li} and had been forfeited if I had not borrowed the very day of payment one thowsand pownds ster : of Sir W^m parsons, and 400^{li} of Sir Addam Loftus to preserve it from being forfeited to Sir Nichas whyte, who was not very desirows therof, as appeered by his nott shewing the cownterpart of the deed of mortgage wheu the money was to be paid (Sir James not having sent over his part of the Indentures by Capⁿ Nightingale, his attorney,) and by sending his son & heir with an acquittance for receipt of the 1400^{li}, without menconing therin wherfore he receaved so great a some of money, on a poor quarter of a sheet of torne scribed paper ; neyther would he vppon receipt of the money deliver vp his deed, nor make any assignement therof, which proves his vnwillingnes to have had it redeemed.

5. The difference and ill words hapned between the L. viscount Rannalagh, and the L. Mowntnorreis in their passing by the bonfiers as they were attending the State comynge from church in the Castle Street, where the L. of Rannalagh gaue the L. Mountnorreis the ly, for saying he was to[o] peremptory with him, & calling his footman vmannerly Roge ; (for the appealing wherof they were both comaunded to keep their howses) the 7th they were both called before the Councell-table, and vpon debate of what had past, the L. Mount norres denied he vsed the word peremptory to the L. of Rannelagh, or called his footman vnmanerly Rogue, but vnmanerly fellow, and therfore to take of the lye from the L. Mount norreis who denied the words Rogue to the footman, & peremptory to himself; Therfore seing and because no such words of provocation were acknowledged to be spoken, he was sorry for having given the ly, & so by bothe their consents they were at the councell table reconciled, made ffrends, & shook hands.

7. James wale paid me 50^{li} for the Michas Rent of Tubbernegh in the County of Lymerick, being thearle of Kildares lands.

8. I gave order to M^r david begg of dublin owt [of] my moneis resting in his hands for yron to paie vnto Sir Addam Loftus ffowr hundred pownds ster: that the first of this moneth I borrowed of him to make vp the thowsand pownds I borrowed of Sir W^m parsons ffourteen hundreth pounds, which that day I paid Sir Nicholas White in dischargde of Sir James Carrols mortgage of cre Ewstace.

8. I signed an acquittance to the L. calfeild for 50^{li} ir due for 5 yeares for Skiddies castle in Corke, ended at Michas laste, & delivered my acquittance to Tottenham, who is to bring me the money, but it was allowed me as part payment of my purchase of his howse in dublin.

December 1629.

1. The L. viscount Baltinglass repaid me the C.^{li} ster : that at the begynning of Michas tearme I lent him on his word, by the delivery of M^r david Begg, whervnto I added other CCC.^{li}, that

I formerlie lent to the L. calfeild, which he now repaid me, and this 400^{li} W^m Barber paid to Sir W^m parsons in part of the thowsand powns I borrowed of him to make vp the 1400^{li}, that on all saincts daie laste I paid Sir Nicholas White for the redemption of creaghewstace.

3. Leeftenant phepis, having broken his shoulder by the ffall of his Horse, I sent to releev him, by Job warde, 40^s ster.

8. Nota: that M^r walley paid the Bishop of Corke for 6 20th partes out of the Colledg of yoghall during my absence in England at one entier payment, xx^{li} ster:, whereas he compounded with the L. of Baltinglasses agent to pay for all his 3  diocess 170^{li}, ffor which (long before he paid the L. of Balt[inglass]) he had his agents acquittance for the said 170^{li}, and gaue his bill to paie but C.^{li} this last Michas term, which when Sir Ro. Travers paid, he had an acquittance from the L. chancellor for that C.^{li}, and another acquittance for that self same C.^{li} from the Lo. of Baltinglas, with the B^{ps} bill therefore cancelled, So as he hath his bill of debt of one C.^{li} back, & for that C.^{li}, three severall acquittances, amounting in all to 370^{li}, and all his clergie for that C.^{li} paid him six entier xxth parts of all their livings: A notable extorcon.

8. The L. Mount norres vppon my acquittance sent me by W^m Barber one C.^{li} ster: for my monethes diett as one of the L. Justices, this being the firste enterteigment that ever I had from queen or king since I firste came into Ireland.

10. Lent Jobe ward in his sickness v^{li} by the delivery of W^m Barber.

14 20. Sir georg St. georg, in the presence of Sir charles coot, renewed his promise vnto me to deliver me the deed made by Sir Robert Newcomen to Lynch that was att[orned] of carrow-kip, and thother 7 quarters in the county of Sligoe, to which estate I being tennant for yeares never attorned, I am to gett Sir Beverlie Newcomens Release, and to pass those lands & ballyn Rodie on Sir James craigs book of ffee Simple.

18 ²⁰. The 6000^{li} I stood bownd to Sir Henry Myn for the payment of his Ma^{ty}s gents penconers was this third day of december, 1629, delivered at Kinsale to Sir Tho Button by John walley, to be transported to Bristoll to M^r John doughty in dischargd of my bond, and is the last of 15000^{li} I lent his Ma^{ty}.

19. I receaved, in dublin, 400^{li} of M^{rs} Hunt, widdo, and gaue her servant my lettres, chardging M^r walley to paie it vppon sight to one M^r Abraham Richesses, merchant, for which exchangd shee is to give me a hogshead of Clarett wyne.

Aprill 1630.

1. The Lady ophaly, the Lo. digby, and his two sisters embarqued this morning at Ringsend, and by his Lo^p to get him made a councellor, I wrott to thearle of Holland & the lo. the L. viscount dorchester. As also other lettres to the dutches of Lennox, thearle of Kildare, & M^r Hodges, and sent in a boxe sealed vp to the dutchess a draught of his Ma^{ty}s lettres to haue the wardship of thearle of Kildare vpon her surrendre to be past in my own name, a lettre of attorney to make the dutchess surrendre, with a surrendre for her grace to signe & seale, and to deliver the King his lettres vpon her receipt of 3600^{li}, the 12 of May, 1630, & security for other 3000^{li} to be paid the 12 of ffebruary next.

2. we dispatched a pacquett by the poste barcque wherin the Lo. chancellor and my self wrott our distinct lettres which we shewed each to other before they were sealed, to Sir Humfrey May & the Lo. Goring. His lo^{ps} lettres to the Lo. goring I enclosed in myne to him : His lo^{ps} to Sir Humfrey he sent me to pervse vnsigned by M^r Meredith : I desired I might see them againe after his Lo^p had signed them, and see them sealed : But the next morning I could not see them, for his lo^p said he had enclosed them in his pacquet to M^r Branthwaite, but made deep vowes that he had altered nothing, but [they] were signed & sealed as M^r Meredith brought them from me, and were agreeable to those sent to the Lo. Goring, his sute in bothe being to be (by his Ma^{ts} lettres) exempted from having any meddling in any my cawses depending in chancery. But to haue them wholly heard & ordered by the 4 Judges; and vppon their disagreement they all in one, or by their particular certificates to send their opynions & the reason of each mans opynion, to the Lo. Keeper, and he to order all things; and his Judgments to be the decree of the L. chancellor & court without delay or alteracon: if the 4 Judges agreed heer, that also to be the decree of the cort.

2. Then I wrott of this, in other lettres sent in a distinct packet of my own by the same passadg to my L. Goring, my cozen Stockdale, M^r Burlymachie, and M^r peeter ffortrie to provide the moneys, viz, 3600^{li}, for the dutches of Lennox against the 12 of May next, and to paie it vppon receipt of the Kings lettres, and her Lap^s perfection of the two deeds of surrendre of the graunts of the pattent of the wardship of thearle of Kildares boddy and the graunt of his lands: and I haue now written to M^r Burlymachie & M^r peeter [Concludes abruptly, there being no appearance of another line having finished this page.—G.].

2. By the same packett I sent my cozen Stockdale the bond of 3000^{li}, and tharticles vnder the hand and seale of M^r peeter Latfewr to be put in sute, together with tharticles of M^r Humfrey Slanye for the 150 tonnes of yron I sould them, with a request that what of my moneis sholde be wanting of the 3600^{li} to paie the dutchess might be by him and M^r Burlymachie taken vp of M^r peeter ffortrie or otherwise, though I paid vse & exchange money therfore, rather then disapoint the dutchess, & I wrott to that effect to M^r Burlymachy & M^r peeter ffortry.

2. By the same packett I wrott to my cozen peeter Nayler of New In, and according the lettres of Sir W^m Jones, in the name of himself, and of all other the Judges of the court of Kings bench in Englande, conteyning a request that my sute against Sir W^m Power might be referred to the order of Sir W^m Jones, which I yealded vnto, so his adward might be published before thend of next Trynytie tearm, otherwise I to proceed with in the begning of Michas tearm vppon my action, of the case of 5000^{li}, at the Kings bench bar, And I directed my cozen Nayler to carry Sir W^m Jones Sir W^m powers book of articles preferred to his Ma^{ty} against me.

7. I borrowed of the lo. viscount Rannyllagh xi^{li}, and he lefte in my keeping other 2000^{li}, ffor repayment of thone and safe delivery of thother he hath my bill.

8. His lo^p hath my bond for payment of my daughter Katherynes marriadg portion, being three Thowsand pounds ster: to be paid at Strongbowes Tombe in Christ Church in dublin on Midsomer day, 1631. And this day I entered into another bond of 2000^{li} for the payment of one thowsand pownds to M^r Roger & M^r Hugh Jones of London on the same Midsomer day, 1631, at M^r phillip Burlymachys his howse in Lyme Street, London, which thowsand pounds is for the debt of the lo. viscount Baltinglas, and is included in my mortgage of Baltinglass. Of this 1000^{li} vppon their lettres I subscribed my vndertaking the payment of 140^{li} therof to the lo. viscount Rannelagh, they abating it me owt of the said 1000^{li} I am bound to pay them for the L. of Baltinglass.

8. my Lo. viscount Ranellagh bestowed on his daughter in law, my Kate, certen vnsett diamonds and a purse with xxx^{li} in golde therin. And I gaue her a Riche Aggett vnsett, for which M^r Simpson, the jeweller in cheapside, offered my wife one hundreth marks: And this Aggett his lo^p took into england with him to chandge or alter for Katy.

8. My man W^m Barber received of M^r david begg on account for the laste 28 Ton of yron sent to dublin 50^{li}. And the xijth of this moneth another 100^{li}, in bothe 150^{li}.

20. Memorandum : that after the L. viscount Rannellagh and I had treated of a mariadg between his onely Son Arthure Jones, and my ffyfte daughter Katheryne Boyle, and I had offered him three thowsand pownds ster with her as a mariadg portion, so he would assure her dorranstown & other lands in Meath of ffive hundreth pounds ster : a year, above all chardges and re-prizes, His lo^p insisted vpon an addicon of her preferment, which he referred to my self, entreating me to declare my self therin to Sir W^m parsons, and what I should in private declare to him by waie of augmentacon, he would be concluded by. And there vpon I privately exprest my purpose to W^m Parsons to this effect, that if the Lo. viscount Rannellagh should (as he desired) compass the purchase of Grandge-gorman, neer dublin, and add yt as an encrease of Jointure to what was promised to my daughter before, I would within some reasonable tyme give him another thowsand powndes ster : towards his payment for the purchaze of the Inheritance therof; and that if his Lo^p did fayle of that purchaze, and that god should bless our said children with a son, that within three monethes after the birthe therof, if the mother and son soe longe lived, that then I would as encrease of portion give them another Thowsand pownds ster :, and therwith make her portion vp full fflower thowsand pownds ster. This was my private promise to Sir W^m parsons, which I doe heerby chardge my son and heir whome I haue appointed to be alsoe my executor, as he will answer the same before the face of the Almighty god, to performe faithfully, and Really, if I my self depart this world before I haue fulfilled yt : As also to dischardg my bond for the firste three thowsand pounds ster: without Sute or delay when the lymitted day of his payment comes, if I dischargd it not before my own death: ffor as the Lo. of Rannellagh hath dealt nobly and fairly with me, so I chardg my son and heir to performe really and frendly with him, and his. This laste thowsande pounds ster:; I haue since alsoe paid my lo. Rannellagh So as he is fully satisfied of & with ffower thowsand pownds ster: as his sons marriadge porcon with my daughter Kate.

8. I took out of the 1200^{li} I borrowed of the L. viscount Rannellagh one C.^{li} ster: that, as is before menconed, I paid the L. Baltinglass as the first money that I paid to himself on the mortgage of Baltinglass.

8. I also by my servant, W^m chettle, delivered (uppon a mes-sage the L. of Rannallagh sent me by Sir John veal) vnto Bal-thazar Treamer, merchant, stranger, of dublin, one other C.^{li} ster: vppon his bill of exchangd, to be paid his lo^p in London, which I sent him enclosed in my lettres by Sir John Bathe, and another for his L[ordship] to receav of my Ironmongers for me 44^{li}. 13^s.

8. Mowntnorres cam into the councell chamber, they both standing in the windoe therof with me, who in my hering moved therein for satisfaction. His answer in my presence was lowd, that he neither had money, nor would pay them. I answered that was no good, nor fytting answer, ffor by thact of counsell it appeered, that he both had moneis, & that by speciall act of counsell they both were devized for payment: He replied that other men as thearle of clanrickard, the L. Lambert & others were vnpaid and ought to be preferred before them. I said that if they were vnpaid, it was his falt, ffor thact of counsell appointed full payment for all in the establishments from Easter, 1629, till Michas 1629, and there was moneis to full pay every one in the liste. He said the act of Councell was made without his consent & that he had & ever would disclaym it, & so went in to the L. chancellor.

November 1630.

1. In the presence of the lo. of the Rannelagh, the M^r of the wardes, my two Servants Badnedg and Hooker, the Serieant at armes affirmed confidently vnto me that in my howse in the castle street of Dublin, there was no tendre of any moneis made this daye, and that he was within the howse the moste part of all the daie. I also sent M^r Savell, the Serieant at Armes, to spend all thafternoon there, and that if the Lo. chancellor, or any for him did make any tendre there of ffifteen hundreth and ffyftie pounds in Redempcon of the mortgage of creewstace, that he should presently come and acquaint me therewith; and he attended in the howse all the day, and brought me assurance at night, that there was no money brought thither, or tendred therein.

27. My Lo. Mownt Norreis, refusing to paie Sir Thomas waynman & M^r ffletcher the moneis due and ordered to them by thact of Councell, and they peticoning for their moneys at the table, and I affirming that his L[ordship] had their moneis in his hands, he answered me, your Lo^p is much mistaken, and that I looked to[o] curiowsly into his accompts, being such a Treasurer as he was, with other vnseemly speeches which the L. Rannelagh took howld of, & repeated, saying that he towld me twice it was not soe, when I told him he had their moneis. Present : L. Rannelagh. Present : L. dullon, L. Esmond,

L. Auniger, Sir Th^o dutton, Lo. of Kerry, Sir Th^o waynman, & M^r ffletcher.

29. Lodwick ponten paid W^m Barber on accompt for the laste Michas Rents of Baltinglass, xxxviij^{li}. v^s, wherof paid to the worckmen of my new stable xxxiiij^{li}, so there is to be paid the L. of Baltinglass thoverplus iij^{li}. v^s; which is paid.

29 20. I wrott to M^r walley to take a conveyance to me and my heires of the o quynlans lands in Lismoor, and to paie him xxx^{li} ster: for the purchaze therof, & sent him W^m M^c James his lettres, offering me the sale of his lands in Lismoor.

25. Me: that the 25 of November, 1629, I entered by composition with the L[ord] chancellor on the howse & lands of the phenixe for the L. chancellors moietie, wherof I was to paie him one C.^{li} a year: wherof I laid owt for him xlv^{li} in England by order of Sir Humfrey May, wherof the L. chancellor gaue me allowance in my said Rent; & this day, it being that very day twelvemoneth that I entred, I resigned to his Lo^p his moyety of the land, and paid him other 55^{li} to make vp his yeares Rent, of which pomfrett made and paid me, owt of the proffits he made that year owt of all the lands xxxij^{li}. xiiij^s. ix^d ster: so as besides my own moiety of that land, I loste in that year lxviij^{li}. vj^s. iij^d.

December 1630.

1. I wrott to M^r walley to paie mounsier his wages now at his going to cork to visit his sick wife; and by him I sent my daughter Mary the ffether of diamonds and Rubies that was my wives: I wrott to him likewise to pay the Sheriff of the Countie of waterford iiij^{li} ir for the poste ffyne of Affane, and x^{li} for tharreares of Ballyakyn parcell of Broghill, at xx^s ir per annum.

6 20. I formerly agreed with walter Mannsfeld for the purchaze of cromrghtane [Cro-martin?], neer Capoquyn (wherof Samuell Hill was my tennant, at viij^{li} per annum), for whose release therin I was to paie him 20^{li} ster : , v^{li} wherof I then paid, other v^{li} this day, and I am to paie him the laste x^{li}, when he & his ffeoffees perfect my estate therof : all which are don by vs all.

6. In respect M^r W^m Snell, my chapleyn, made request vnto me to be made dean of Rascarbry, and parson of christchurch in Corke, he promised me to resign his chanterhip of waterford, and his vickars chorals place in Lismoor, for M^r Stephen Jerrome, on which condicon I graunted him the said deanery & parsonadg of christchurch, and vnited the vickaridg of whitechurch which I had formerly presented him vnto, all in one pattent.

6 20. I bestowed also two vickaridges in Kerry on M^r Badyn, dean of Ardfert, my chaplen, and wrott to Th^o Joye to paie M^r Berisford vj^{li} a year for serving the cure of my entier Rectoryes, and I procured M^r Godwyn a pattent of both his prebends & of the vickaridg of Mothells, the presentacon wherof I bestowed on him.

8 20. I agreed with M^r Th^o ward for his lease & Interest in Ratharget, Kenny court, & duncryt, in creaghestace, in the County of Kildare, as apereth by our agreement, for which I am to paie 350^{li} ster : I procured for M^r Bartholomew price, my chaplen, his Ma^{ty} graunt of the vickaridge of Tathbrede.

8. M^r Simpson brought over his Ma^{ty} lettres for the customers office of Corke, but wee had graunted it to ffrances Boyle before the delivery of his Highnesses lettres : ffrances Boyle being drowned, thoffice agayn fell into our dispose, which the second tyme we graunted to M^r Simpson, geving ffranceses widdo cherety 40^{li}, xx^{li} wherof by his bond is paiaible to Sir Randall cleyton at Xtmas, & other 20^{li} at Easter next, bothe brothers being bound to Sir Randall to pay it him for charety her vse, & sent Sir Randall the bond by Tom Skyddy.

8. I sent by Richard Mawle, purcevant, my lettres in answer of the L. of dorchesters, and by him I sent in my packet to M^r Branthwait M^r Mansers receipt for one C.th tons of yron delivered him for the laste Michas proporcon, and his bills of exchangd & lettres of adviz for payment of 1300^{li}, & sent them in my lettres to M^r Georg Hooker, praying him to haue the contractors hands of acceptance to the bill of exchangd, and to leav the moneys with them vnreceaved to be with them in readiness vntill I should send order how to have it disposed of. And to that effect, to have the 1300^{li} reserved by them I wrott to my contractors.

15 20. This day Capⁿ Charles Price returned for England, by whome I sent my lettres to the L. Keeper of England, thearle of Holland, & the L. Goring to paie the Dutchess of Lennox 3000^{li}, as my laste payment for the wardship of thearle of Kildare. And wheras I am indebted to ensign Thomas Blanye as the remayn of my purchaze for the purchase of the fowrth part of Askeating, who assigned me to pay to his brother what part therof he should require, he gaue me order to pay 300^{li} of the thowsand to Capⁿ charles pryce, & sent me his acquittance for that CCC.^{li}, to whome I was willing to haue made ready payment therof. But he entreated me to paie him xxx^{li} for the vse of it for one year ending the first of January, 1631, & to give him my bill of debt for the payment of the 300^{li} the said day, and I paid him in ready gold the 30^{li}, and gave him my bill for 300^{li}, paiaible as before, so as he had thvse of his money after the rate of ten per cent paid him before hand, & I ow him the CCC.^{li} paiaible as before: which I paid him at his daie, and haue my bill cancelled.

20 11. I discharged my ignorant steward, Xtofer Green, who was preferred vnto me by thearle of Manchester, L. privie Seale of England, and placed Capⁿ Morgan, my steward: As also the xiiith of this moneth I made wagstafe, to be my cleark of my kythen, at the yearly wages of vj^{li}.

19 20. M^r. Nicholas white, son and heir to Sir Nichas whyte, this day receaved of my servant, W^m chettle, the some of fyve hundreth and ffyftie pownds ster:, and thervppon conveyhed over vnto me by deed the leases in possession and Reversion which Capⁿ Luke Nitingale past over vnto him, being the forfeited leases in possession & in Revercon of the Rectory of Baltinglass; for which parsonadg Rowland williams offers me 140^{li} ster: a year, he also to pay the xcheq^r Rent, and the curates stipend with all other chardges, ordenary and extraordenary. And wheras the said parsonadg was mortgaged by Luke Nightingale to M^r Nichas whyte for 880^{li} ster:, yet the trueth is that the whole money was the L. of Baltinglasses, who had so much more in mortgage from Sir James Carroll and Luke Nightingale vppon the said Rectory, & the lo. of Baltin-glass assigned his whole Interest therin to Nightingale, therby the better to enhable him to mortgage it to young M^r whyte, who theron lent 500^{li} to the L. of Baltinglass for one year, and he not (17.) Being hable to redeem it at the yeares end by repaying the 500^{li} at the yeares end, with 50^{li} for the vse therof, dealt with me to redeem yt, so to preserve it from forfeiture; which I did, with this condicon, that if he paid me this 550^{li}, and the mortgage I haue vppon the Mannor & Abbey of Baltinglass, all entierly at one payment, when the 4000^{li} for Baltinglass shalbe paiable, Then he is to haue the Mannor, Abbey, and parsonadge all againe. But if the L. Baltinglass faile then to repaie me my 4550^{li}, with consideracon, then am I vppon meet request to pay his Lo^p 330^{li} more, and he to graunt & Release me & my heires all his estate in the whole Mannor and parsonadge, & if I had not paid this 550^{li} to M^r white, he had held the parsonadg forfeited, and so the L. of Baltinglass had loste the 330^{li} which I haue promised to paie him, if all be not redeemed from me as before.

21 ²⁰. Sir Henry Lee made an earnest request vnto me to receav & keep for him ccc^{li} ster: owt of the ffynes of vlster, when I should be paid yt by the L. Mowntnorreis, who owes him so much, as also to take into my keeping other ccc^{li} in ready money, and to give him vse for it at ten in the C.th for vj monethes, & my bond then to repaye it with the consideracon; which to pleasure Harry Lee, who was sick, and ready to goe into England (though I thanck god I had no such need of money as to tak it vppon so high vse) I did, and he hath my bond, & I his ccc^{li} ster: & the L. Mowntnorresses noat for thother ccc^{li} to be paid me, when I can gett it for honest Harry.

21. My L. chancellor delivered me the case drawn vp (as his Lo^p towld me) by Sir W^m Reves, his Ma^{ty}s attorney generall, to make the king a tytle to Ormond; which I returned to his Lo^p in the counsell chamber the 23th of december.

22. The Lady Ashe, of Trym, retorned me the C.^{ty} that I lent her heer in dublin vppon her worde, without consideracon, to free her owt of her trowbles with M^r Wesley, of the dangan, who had her cattle vppon an vn[con]scionable decree of the L. chancellor.

Of the 700^{li} that M^r walley paid M^r Abraham Richesses vppon my direction for which I had M^r Richesses & M^r Champens bill to be repaid heer on St. Thomas day, M^r Champen paid Sir Edward Bagshaw 200^{li}, as so much money that I had taken vp of Sir Edward a lyttle before; and thother 500^{li} remayning, ²⁰ they both this day paid M^r ffitzgerald, of castletown, Moylagh his son & heir, in part payment of 750^{li} ster: for the redemption therof; the other 250^{li} was made vp for him owt of the ccc^{li} that I had of Sir Henry Lee, so as now I haue paid Sir Garrett Aylmer 350^{li} for Redempcon of his Moyety of Moylagh, and to M^r James ffitz Gerald other 750^{li} for his mortgage of thother half, in all ealeven hundreth pounds ster : to bring home that mannor to the howse of Kildare, from whome it hath been owt in mortgage abowt 45 yeares : God bless that howse.

24 ²⁰. I sealed a lease to Tottenham to the vse, and in the name of his cozen Atkins, of the ploughland of powlmoar in the barrony of Inchequyn to begin at our Lady day next for xxxj yeares at the yearly Rent of xxxij^{li} ster : , wheras before James Nugent and his son held yt of me for xij^{li} a year ; owt of which Rent I doe give thincreace therof, being xx^{li} ster : a year, to my servant W^m chettle for tearm of his lyfe in reward of his long & faithfull services already don, & heerafter to be don, and reserv to my self and my heires during W^m Barber als chettles his lyfe, no more, but my olde rent of xij^{li} ster.

January 1630.

1 ²⁰. I gaue my son Richard, for his New yeares guifte, the chayn of Gowld, and the King of denmarcks meddall or picture in goold, fastened and hanged in one of the lyncks therof, which his Ma^{ty} of denmarck with his graceows lettres sent vnto me, as a Royall demonstracon of his princely acceptance of my endeavors for preserving and supplying his great Ship and men, that by extraordinerry tempests were put in at yoghall, with express chardge to my son never to depart with it, but as I had given it him, so he to leave it to his heir, to be ever continued to the howse of thearles of Corke ; which howse in vnspotted Honnor & integrety I desire thalmighty for ever to vphold with his grace.

2. I gaue ordre to capⁿ Morgan to lend Sir Richard osborn

20^{li} more, which makes the moneis lent him 270^{li} ster:, and Capⁿ Morgan owt of my moneis lent my chaplen M^r Godwyn viij^{li}, and W^m Barber to M^r Snell iij^{li}.

3 20. By lettres from the L. Goring, and Sir John leek, I am advertized that M^r Burlymachie owt of my moneis hath without any order from me delivered the L. Goring, or Sir John Bingely 200^{li} ster: for the forbearance of the 5000^{li} he lent the L. Goring for the six Monethes ended at Xtmas 1630.

12. I wrott to M^r Burlymachy to paie Sir W^m Beecher xx^{li} ster: for his gratuetty of xl^{li} a year, due for six monethes ended at Hollentyde laste.

14 20. October 1631.

6. I returned owt of Mownster and cam to Dublin the 6 of this moneth, and the L. chancellor cam thither the Tuesday after.

7. This 7 of october the 4550^{li} with the Interest after ten in the hundred, was to be paid me by the Lo. viscount Baltinglass at Strongbowes tombe in christ church of dublin, in Redempcon of thabbey and parsonadg of Baltinglass, where the Lord generall, the lo. of Ranellagh, Sir Addam Loftus, with my servants, Henry Staynes, charles Hooker, Tho Badnedg and others expected the money till after son was sett. But no money brought, nor tendre made, onely the L. viscount Baltinglas, after son setting of that day brought me to my howse a lettre vnsealed from Sir John Bingle propounding vnto me to discharge me of as much as my mortgage was, that I stood bound to Mr Ravenstroste and Mr Beniamyn Henshawe, to pay them, as suerty for the Lo. Goringe; which beng vndertaken by his Lo^p I refused, espetially to make Sir Jo Bingle a Releas of Baltinglas & the parsonadge without condicon, to whome I was neither obliged, nor indebted; & thervpon at the request of the Lo. of Baltinglas, I redelivered him Sir John Bingle's open vnsealed letter.

12. I yealded in the presence, and by the perswasions of the Mr of the cowrt of wardes, & Sir Addam Loftus, to promise my Lo. of Baltinglass soe he would include in our agreement in one entier some, all the moneis I lent & supplied him withall and the consideracon moneis to be due for the year following in one entier some, so he secured my estate with his lands in Vlster to give another yeares day for the redemption, soe as if he fayled then, all to be myne in honnor, law & equity.

15. I receaved one C.^{li} ster: of david Begg for yron vpon his accompt, which I lent to the Lord digby, in part of the second thowsand pounds I yealded to supply him withall, towards the freeing of his debts & estate, and thother nyne ~~20~~ hundreth pownds I haue promised to furnish him in reddey money withall. I haue agreed to pay Sir ffrances willoghby for his ladies estate for lyffe in the lands of Asketing, being 200^{li} ster: a year, to be paid at all S^b 1632: 1200^{li} ster: & receaving the next Easter Rents, & the Michas Rents, 1631, cleering all.

~~20~~ 20. I borrowed of the Lo. viscount Rannelagh 900^{li} ster: to be by me repaid him before thend of this Michas tearm; and this 900^{li}, I lent wholly to the L. digby to make vp the C.^{li} that owt of my moneis his lop^s receaved of david begg of dublin one thowsand pownds ster : , soe as now to free my son in lawe the L. digbies estate, that he may not be eaten vp with vsurers, I haue lent him gratis in ready money two thowsand pounds english, viz : one thowsand pounds ster : , gratis, vppon his bond about 4 yeares since, and now this second thowsand pounds, for 20 which I haue yet no securetie. Nota : that vppon a second consideracon I forbare to borrow the above menconed some of 900^{li} or any part thereof from the L. of Rannelagh, but resolved to supplie the L. digby therewith owt of my own Rents due this Michas.

20. I sent over the accompt (in my lettres to the Lo. Goringe by M^r Jermyn) between me and the Londoners which ar my contractors for my yron, the yron delivered them and the moneis & comodities their factors haue receaved from me, since M^r Burlymachies last receipts for me, amounting vnto as apereth by my accompt 5293^{li}. 9^{sh}, wherof M^r Georg Hooker hath by my order receaved, & is to receav those somes following, viz : for M^r Hugh Jones 860^{li}, ffor my Lord of Rannelagh (to make the former 860^{li} one thowsand pounds) 140^{li} : and to make vp the 1400^{li} W^m Barber paid him 3000^{li} for my daughter Katherynes marriadg porcon, I assigned M^r Hooker to pay him 1600^{li} : in all 2600^{li} ; More M^r George Hooker receaved of my contractors, and without any order from me paid M^r Phillip Burlymachie other 300^{li}, which he paid Sir Robert pye for my debt (with xi^{li} more) to Sir Henry Lea, which maketh his receipts & payments for me to be 2900^{li}, soe as their Rests of myne in M^r Hooker & my contractors hands 2393^{li}. 9^s, which by those my lettres now 20 sent by M^r Jermyn I haue directed M^r Hooker wholly to receav, and therout to pay my Lorde Goring vppon his bill (which I lend him gratis), 2000^{li} : To my Taylor, M^r Parckins, on acc[ount] 50^{li}, to my cozen peeter Nayler for his disbursements, in my sute againste Sir W^m power 20^{li}; And to reserve the remayn, being 323^{li}. 9^s, till I give him order therowt to pay Capⁿ charles price 300^{li}, if W^m ffreke fayle me to pay it.

20 14. George goring arrived heer the xxijth of May, 1631, and after I had promised to lend his ffather 2000^{li} ster :, for the payment wherof I haue sent direction to M^r georg Hooker, I also promised to lend George another thowsand pounds to be repaid me when he should be able, yet he departed from me the 14 of this moneth without once taking leav of me, & lefte his wife and servants heer, and posted through Scotland into England, on the choice gray gelding I bestowed vppon him, called gray Brown; whose sodden & vnknown departure hath much disquietted me, his wyfe, & ffrends.

18. M^r Jermyn departed with my lettres to the Lo. Goring, Sir W^m Beecher, the Ladie villiers, in which lettres to her La^y I sent the coppie of the conclusion made for the wardship of M^r Gerrott ffitz gerald of dromany; I also sent lettres by him to M^r perkins, and to my cozen, peeter Nailer, aucthorizing him to deliver the L. Goring all my articles, deeds, statutes, etc., to the L. Goring by inventory Indented, and I gave my consent that his lo^p shoulde recover the 3522^{li} from the L. Beamount & his mother, and keep & vse it, without paying any consideracon for the same, till one of my two yongest daughters should attayn to thage of 14 yeares, & then repaie it me, or as I should assign it. I assigned 50^{li} to be paid M^r parkins and 20^{li} to my cozen, peeter Nailer, by M^r George Hooker.

20. I wrott to M^r walley to appoint W^m wiseman & John Turner to view the lands that ffances Carroll hath in mortgage neer Kilpatrick from M^r white, of corke, for cvij^{li} ster :, & if they both did lyke of the land and assurances, then to haue all past to them two vnto my vse, and vppon the perfection of the conveyances, then John Turner to pay carroll the cvij^{li} ster.

21. I wrott to John Turner to paie out of my Rents, vppon sight of my lettres to M^r W^m Brookes, of Bandon, for victualling the kings ship, called the 5th whelpe, for 3 monethes, begining the vth of this moneth, the some of 136^{li}. 17^s. 6^d ob ster.; which I did for that Sir Edward Bagshaw, had no custome moneis lying either at Cork or Kinsale, he being to repay it me heer.

21. At M^r Aldersie, who is ffactor for Alderman parckhurste of London, his request, I chardged M^r Walley with the payment of 500^{li} to M^r Tho. Stowt, of yoghall, directing him vppon payment of the 500^{li} to take in Alderman parkhurst his bill of exchangd, and Stowtes receipt endorsed thereon, and to send it hether vnto me, that ther vppon I might demaund repayment of my 500^{li} of M^r Aldersie, for which I haue his bill: This 500^{li} M^r walley paid Tho. Stowte and retorned me Alderman parkhurst his bill with the receipt endorsed vnder Thomas Stowtes hand.

22. The howse of Nonnes on the merchant key in dublin was seized on by the Maior, etc. There were 16 of prime noble men & gent. daughters therin: 5 of them in their habits were brought before the Lords Justices, and counsell, into the counsell chamber, and there exam[in]ed, and licenced to retorn to their former place of residence, there to continew for one moneth, soe as in the mean tyme they did put in good security never to reassemble conventually together in this kingdom, & to appeer at the Table, if at any tyme within 3 monethes their aperance should be required of any of their suerties. And as those 5 nonnes were brought to the castle on foot, soe it was without my consent or privity that they were sent thence in a coach, wherby too much grace and countenance was given to such delinquents, and contempners of aucthorety.

23. W^m Barber received of M^r walshe for the Michas Rents of castle dermott 50^{li} ster.

20. My old servant, Robert Bridges, with his wyffe and children, being at dublin, and fallen into great poverty, I sent W^m Barber with v^{li} vnto them for their releeff, And procured from Sir Edward Bagshaw a waiters place for him in the porte of Kinsale, with the ffee of x^{li} ster: a year, & took his eldest son, Richard Bridges, from him & appointed him to attend my youngest son, Robert Boyle: So to give his father ease of chardges, & the sons breeding.

November 1631.

3. M^r Meredith brought me from the L. chancellor signed by his lo^p, a draught of comission in paper for thenquiry of ormond, with a coppie of his ma^{ts} lettres, and the names of the comissioners, which I signed, and delivered his lo^p the next morninge in the councell chamber, with request that the Judges might be consulted thervppon er it were sealed, which his Lo. promised.

5. I moved the L. chancellor, who this day Joyned with me in the Knighting of M^r Justice Mayart.

8 20. I gave M^r cullans, dean of St. patricks, v^{li} ster: in money as a help for the new casting & hanging of the Bells of that church, and the L. c^h gaue them other iiij^{li}.

20 9 20. This daie I was sworne Lo. high Treasurer of Ireland in his ma^{ts} court of exchequer, and immediately after I had taken the oath of supremacie on my knees, and the othe of office standing, I Knighted my cozen Gerrald Lowther on the excheqr table, before my colleague the L. chancellor departed the Court, for he gaue me a place, leaving the chancellor of the exchequer on his right hand; next vnto whome the L.

chancellor satt, & the L. cheef barron on his left hand, till the cleark of the crown of the chancery, M^r King, had openly read to me bothe the said oathes; and those performed, the L. chancellor seated me, between his Lo^p and the Lo. cheef barron, where we all satt together a short tyme, and then called forth Barron Lowther and the L. chancellor, and my selfe rysing together from the bench, stood bothe vpon the table, where I took the Kings Sworde into my hand, & therwith I dubd my cozen Lowther Knight. But it is to be remembered, that my L. chancellor never cam (as was vsed, & agreed) into the counsell chamber that morning, but vnknown vnto me, went privately into the court of chancery, neither in chancery nor exchequer made any publicque speach vnto me; yet I feasted him, the Lords, & counsell liberally.

11. Capⁿ Morgan, towards the defraying of the chardge of my howskeeping, receaved of david begg 200^{li} ster: on the accompt of my yron, soe as now with the C.^{li} my lo. digby receaved of him, he hath in all paid 300^{li} ster: since my retorn owt of Mownster.

19. I receaved from M^r W^m Brookes, of Bandon, an acknowledged[ment] that according [to] my direction, John Turner had delivered him for 3 monethes victualling of his ma^{ts} ship called the 5th whelp, the some of 136^{li}. 17^s. 6^d ster:, which receipt I gaue Capⁿ Morgan to be repaid my moneis from Sir Edward Bagshaw, at whose request I ordered those, my moneis, to be soe paid there, for that there was none of the Kings custome moneis in the customers hands there, to supply this necessety, which cxxxvj^{li}. xvij^s. vj^d, Capⁿ Morgan is to accompt to me for, in his disbursements for my howskeeping.

20. At M^r Aldersies request M^r walley paid to Tho Stowt vpon M^r Alderman parckhurst, of London, his bill of exch[andg]

500^{li}, which 500^{li} I left in M^r Aldersies hands, and he wrote to M^r Alderman parkhurst to paie 700^{li} to my Lady Barbary villiers, which if it shalbe accordinglie to her La^p, then am I to paie him one C.^{li} more, and Capⁿ Morgan the other C.^{li} that he rec[eaved] of M^r Gerrald ffitz gerald of the decies, soe to make vp her 700^{li}.

20 21 20. John Turner certefied me that he had purchazed for me the inheritance of one gneves of Land in gallan, neer cloghnekeelty, for xx^{li}, x^s ster: worth iij^{li}, vj^s, viij^d per annum.

30. I Joyned with the L. chancellor in our jointe comendatory lettres, to the L. Bicsshop of London, to make dean Andrews, dean of Lymerick, Bicshop of Killalloe, and to haue his chantership of St. patrick, and his parsonadg of Kilcliff in comendam.

December 1631.

6. I sent lettres by Sir Robert M^c Leland to capⁿ charles price to receave of M^r George Hooker 300^{li} ster.; due by my bond, for part of my purchaze of Leeftenant Blanies fowrth part of Asketten, and in my lettres to capⁿ price I enclosed my lettres to George Hooker to paie him 300^{li}, and to returne me my bond cancelled, M^r Hooker now having that 300^{li}, and some overplus of moneis of myne, 23^{li}. 9^s in his hands; And by him I also sent my lettres to the Lo. Goring.

7 ²⁰. This 7 of december, 1631, in my howse in dublin, between the howres of 2 and three in the morning, my daughter, the Lady Joan, Countess of Kildare (god be ever praised), was safely delivered of her firste borne childe, being a daughter, whome I beseech god ever to bless and prosper: obj^t ibid
* 3 m^tij 1631[2].

10. [Interlined.—G.] I cleered with M^r warren for my respits of Homage and gaue him my acquittance for 8^{li} for his Rent due at all S^{ts} laste, for his tythes parcell of gilton, and paid him 4^{li}, allowing him in his rent the curates stipend.

7. I gaue order to capⁿ Morgan to receav the Michas Rents of my tennant M^r fitz gerald, of Kilrushe, for the last Michas Rents of the Mannor, town, & Lands of Baltinglass, the accompts and moneis, wherof remayn with capⁿ Morgan, to be paid to the L. viscount Baltinglass as shalbe directed, which 68^{li} he paid his Lo^p 21 dec. 1631.

²⁰ 7. Robert fitz gerald brought hether 350^{li} of my L. of Kildares Rents, wherof though I had by 4^{li} the week paid him 44^{li} ster: for his weekly allowance since Michas last, hand a C.^{li} to Sir ffrances willoghby for his coach & four horses; yet those payments notwithstanding his Lo^p seized on 150^{li} of this 350^{li} without abating the moneis weekly allowed him for his expenses, so as W^m Barber had but 200^{li} therof for my vse, which he paid vnto Sir Gerrald Lowther for Ric: Blacknolls debt.

8. Sir charles Coots, on their first obligacon, paid dongarvan cl^{li} ster: due therby the 29 of September laste, which 150^{li} ster: I gaue my son for his half yeares allowance, beginning at Easter, 1631, and ending at Michas, 1631, after the rate of my allowance to him of 300^{li} ster: a year: Nota: this 150^{li} was paid my son about ten dayes since.

8. The Lo. chancellor moved me this day at thinstance of M^r Harbert to alter M^r o Shaghnes being in the bill, and by vs bothe pricked to be sheriff of the county of Galwaie, to haue another that is son in law to M^r Harbert to be sheriff; I answered that M^r o Shaghnes was in the Roll, that he was so Comended and approved by the L. of Kilmallock & Sir Garrott Lowther, Justices of Assizes, that he was prickt & invited by vs both, & devulged to be sheriff: his Lo^p replied that he had promised [worn, M^r Har]bert 2 yeares since, & would sign a warr[an]t if he might be sheriff.

9 20. In laste Michas Tearme, there were knighted by the L. chancellor & me Sir Samuell Mayart, Sir Gerrard Lowther, Sir Jo philpott & Sir Lancelot Lother.

I cawsed Will Barber to paie Sir Garrott Lowther 200^{li} ster: more, in part payment of the 550 that I engaged my self to my cozen Lowther for Blacknoll, & both the payments I haue made him, viz., clx^{li}. ij^s. ij^d from the Lady An. parsons that I had formerly lent her deceased husband, Sir Laurenc parsons, amount vnto cccxl^{li}. ij^s. ij^d ster.

11. I knighted Sir Thomas Sterlock, of waterford, vppon the request by lettres of thearle of Holland : Badnedg had one C. marcks sterling to himselfe.

13. This daie Capⁿ Morgan (to whome I had given my acquittance to rec : of the vice-treasurer one C.^{li} ster : for my monethes enterteignment ended the 26 of November, 1631,) brought me an accompt therof, viz., that he had paid his deputie Receaver for the Michas, 1630, & theaster Rent, 1631, for the moiety of the Rent of the phenix, the tythes, & the port corn then due, 47-16^s-10¹/₂^d ster ; and the rest of that C.^{li} he had disbursed towards the chardg of my howskeeping ; ffor which chardge of my howskeeping from my retorn owt of Mounster to dublin, being the 6 of october till this day, I haue disbursed 539^{li}. 7^d ster ; and yet by capⁿ Morgans accompt, it appeers I am in his debt till the xth of this moneth of december, 1631, xxiiij^{li}. ij^s. j^d ob.

16 20. The C.^{li} in golde that was receaved of M^r Gerrald ffitz Gerald, of the decies, as an addicon to the 600^{li} that I made over to the Lady villiers, for the L. digby, I this daie paid vnto M^r Thomas ffitz morrice ffitz Gerald, of clenlishe, as a ffyne for a lease in Revercon for 99 yeares of Tomgeely, and 4 plowlands & a half neer Askeating, which lease at the Rent Sir ffrances Barckley paid is to be good vnto me, if M^r ffitz gerald repaie me not my C.^{li} on Candlemas day next in my howse in dublin.

16. Me : that this day M^r Ro Kennedies clearck brought me 5 severall Recognizances acknowledged by Eddie oge Lacie, of Brury, Tho ffitz morrice geralde, of the clenlishe, and W^m Haly, of Lymerick, alderman, before the Lo. chancellor, for payment of 1082^{li}, viz., 150^{li} ster : at strongbowes tombe, in christchurch, dublin, to capⁿ charles price, before thend of Easter term next, 1632; And the lyke for 1633; the lyke for 1634; the lyke for 1635; And the firste to paie his Ma^y 82^{li} in Easter tearme, 1636, the ffowr of which Recogenzances concerning the 1000^{li} to be paid capⁿ price I haue; the 5^{li} for the King M^r Kennedies men hath.

19. Sir vallentyne Brown having made Sir Thomas Brown, Sir Richard waters & my self his ffeoffees of truste for his whole estate, I this day, with the consent of yonge Val brown & M^r solicitor perfected thassurances, wherof Sir vallentyne is to deliver me one of thindent vnder his own, his Ladies & his ffeoffees hands.

20. I Received from M^r George Hooker my lo. Gorings bill of debt, for the repayment of the 2000^{li} ster: that in ready money I lent him gratis.

20 20. vppon the resignacon of M^r Gore, I presented M^r Stephen Jerro[m] to the parsonadg of Mogely, And vppon the death of M^r Massock, I presented M^r Gore to the vickaridg of Rosmyre.

22. Me: that M^r ffitzgerald, my tennant of Baltinglas, having paid capⁿ Morgan 68^{li} ster: the Michas Rent of that mannor, & M^{rs} wolverstown having also paid W^m Barber x^{li}. xv^s for that Michas Rent, 1631, of that mannor, I this day gaue order to capⁿ Morgan to deliver those lxviij^{li} to the L. Baltin-glas, it being our agreement, that in regard I gaue him another yeeres daie for the redempcon of Baltinglas, I should yeald vp to him that yeares Rent which I should receav, and he at the yeares end to paie me my princepall, with ten in the C.th for my forbearance. And for the x^{li}. xv^s that M^{rs} wolverstons paid W^m Barber, the lo. of Baltinglas, accepted that, in satisfaction & dischargd of xiiij^{li} that his servant charles Barstable received of my tennants in Bandonbridge (by my order) for licensing of Alehowskeepers there; for both which somes, thone of 68^{li} paid him, and thother of x^{li}. xv^s in manner aforesaid thus acquitted, his lo^p gaue his acquittance, which remayneth with Capⁿ Morgan; And for the 3 yeares arrear for crookhaven, amounting to xxx^{li}, due at Michas, 1630, and the yeares Rent of vske in the County of Kildare, ended also at all S^{ts} 1630, I haue his lo^p lettres ro paie my self with the lxx^{li} due by Rowland williams for the Rectory of Baltinglas, at St. patricks day next.

So as now Sir Charles is wholly paid his thowsand pownds ster: ; and this abbey I give my son Roger and his heires males :

Nota: that this 300^{li} was repaid M^r Aldersey, viij^o Auguste, 1633.

20 9. A moste lamentable daye to me: This day between 3 and 4 of the clock in the morning, it pleased god in his great mercie to translate owt of this sinfull world into his heavenly kingdom my second, and moste deer daughter the Lady Sarah digby, wyffe to the Lo. Robert digby, who departed in my howse in dublin.

9. This day my second son Lewis went to sea from dalky, neer dublin, with Capⁿ Thomas James, in his Ma^{ts} shipp called the nyenth whelp, to gayn knowledg from the Capⁿ in navigacon and the Mathematicques; I gaue my son x^{li} for himself, v^{li} to Travers my servant, that I employed to attend him, & sent also my sons ffootman to wait vppon him for 2 or 3 monethes that I ~~20~~ resolve he shall spend of this somer at sea: god bless him: and the tenth my daughter Goring arrived at waterford; the 12 my son Lewis met her there.

10. The 200^{li} I lefte vnpaid to the Lo. Robert digby of the 3000^{li} ster: for which his lo^p, his mother, and their ffeoffees of truste mortgaged the castle and Barrony of Geshell vnto me for, I did assigne M^r Sheriff Begg to paie the same to his lo^p out of the proceed of my iron; wherof he paid his lo^{ps} servant, Edward woodward, this day one C.^{li} ster:; the other C.^{li} ster: david Begg yet owes the Lo. digby. But is since paid his lo^p.

10 ~~20~~. I wrott to Sir peercie to deliver over to Thomas Mead at 50^{li} a year the tenancie of the parsonadg and vickaridge of Kilbolane, to begin at St. James his day 1633.

11 ~~20~~. Henry Stanes having 207^{li} ster: of myne for licens & transportacon moneis in his hands, I assigned him to bring in the vij^{li} to W^m Barber, and to pay thother 200^{li} to Sir Addam Loftus of Rathfernham, in part of the 7000^{li} ster: I am agreed to pay for thabsolute purchase of the ffee simple & inheritance of the mannor of Trym and Moyare in the county of Meath, of which 7000^{li} I paid for Sir Addams debt 2000^{li}, to Sir John clothworthie the firste daye of November, 1632; I haue now chardged my self by my lettres to pay 800^{li} ster: to the Lo. dockwraie, when his lo^p shall send over perfected by him, and his mother, the deeds and conveighances of his proporcon of the plantacon lands in the Rannalaghes, which they bothe ar to estate Sir Addam and his heires in, by agreement between M^r ffitz gerald, the Lo., and the Lady dockwraes agent, & Sir Addam Loftus, drawn vp indifferently between them by M^r John pollixfen, 200^{li} as before, I haue directed Henry Staines to pay Sir Addam, which makes 3000^{li}, of the 7000^{li}. Thother 4000^{li} I haue engaged my self to pay Sir Addam the firste of Auguste come twelvmoneth, 1634, or sooner if vppon any good purchaze he shall make, I shall vppon reasonable warninge be required thervnto for his benefytt. And Sir Adam is, by my yealding to his importuneties to receav the next Michas, and Easter Rents, of the Mannor of Trym and Moyare, and I to loose all the benefyt of my former 3000^{li} so disbursed, & secured, and not to receave any of the Rents of those two mannors till for, & at Michas 1634. And it is not the lands onely I purchaze, for in this manner of payment of my moneis without consideracon before hand, and in the overvallying therof, I overpay 2000^{li}: Of this 200^{li} Henry Staines this day paid Sir Addam Loftus 50^{li} ster.

xj. Thomas Larck, the purcevant, receaved of my money to porte corn, lxx^s, and I lent him to redeem his coat iij^{li} ster: in ready money, soe he owes me in bothe vj^{li}. x^s ster: for which I haue his bill, wherof he repaid me vj^{li}, so rests x^s.

ffirst I assigned him to deliver Sir Thomas Stafford to be delivered Poynes to pay for a coach, to bwy plate & necessaries for my children, 200^{li}.

Item. I chardged him by my bill of exchangd to paie the Countess of Desmonde, 400^{li}.

Item. the 28 of Aprill, by my bill of Exchange, I did chardge M^r Burlymachie with the payment of iiij^{xx} ^{li} ster: to M^r John Worstoran for Sir Thomas Brown, who is to repaie it me by his bill primo Auguste next, 80^{li}.

Item: the Same day, 220^{li} ster: to Sir Nichas Salter, of London, when he had perfected to me an assignement of the lease of Bealvilly, made by W^m Salter vnto him, 220^{li}.

More the laste of Aprill 1626 I receaued in redde golde of Cap^a Thomas Atherly the som of sixe hundreth pounds ster:; and gaue him a firste & second bill of exchange chardging M^r Burlymachie to repay him the lyke some in London within 20 daies after sight, 600^{li} ster.

More by my lettres of the 15 of June 1626 sent by Edd poynes, I assigned M^r Burlymache to pay Sir Thomas Stafford or the said Edmond poynes, if Sir Thomas were not in London, to pay for my wiues coach, and other provisions for my children in London, to be taken out of the remayn of my moneis in his hands, and out of the 1150 due to me 24 Junij 1626 the som of 150^{li}.

More Edd poynes receaued of him, over and above the 150^{li} laste assigned to his receipt, 90^{li} ster :, for that his disbursements exceeded the 150^{li} so much ; soe as last, wheras I assigned him to receav of M^r Burlymachy but 150^{li} yet he receaved 240^{li}, wherof heer chardged 90^{li}. 1740^{li}.

More I receaved the 3 of 8^{ber} 1626 of the Lo. Barry the some of one hundreth pownds ster :, and chardged M^r phillip Burlymachie with the repayment therof to Sir Edmond verney in dischargd of so much of my lo. Barries debt due by bond, and to pay Sir Nichas Salter and John cleytons wife any money on their two acquittances not exceeding 200^{li} to cleer with her brother Knight. This bill of exchandg I recalled and canceled and delivered the C.^{li} to Sir John Leck, who paid it the Lo. villiers for Sir Edd Verney. But my lettres by John cleytons wife were sent away.

More 25 october 1626 I receaved of M^r Ja white 500^{li} from the Maior of waterford and chardged M^r Burlymachie 500^{li}.

The 28 of october 1626 John Crosby paid M^r walley by my direction one hundreth pounds, for which I gaue him my first & second bills of exchange, chardging M^r phillip Burlymachie with the repayment of the lyke some to Sir peers crosby at ten daies after sight, C.^{li} ster.

NOTES AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

Page 1. 'landed at the Rings end'—The accustomed place of landing and departure in the 17th century, as Kingstown is in the 19th. See vol. ii., 340, and note thereon. Ibid. 'the L. deputy' = Sir Henry Carey, K.B., Viscount Falkland, who had filled the office for the seven previous years. Ibid. 'the L. chancellor' = Adam Loftus, Viscount Ely. Ibid. 'monaster evan' = Monastereven, a market and post town in the county of Kildare, about thirty-two miles S.W. from Dublin. It derives its name from a Religious House dedicated to St. Emin or Evin, who lived in the 7th century A.D. At the dissolution the abbey and manor were granted to George, Lord Audley, who assigned them to Adam Loftus, Viscount Ely, and they are at present the property of the Marquess of Drogheda. Ibid. 'son in law, Mr. Robert Merrydeth'—Correctly, step-son, for the chancellor had married Sarah [Bathow], widow of Richard Meredyth, Bishop of Leighlin. Mr. Meredyth was of Greenhills, co. Kildare. He was knighted in 1631, being at the time made privy councillor and chancellor of the Irish Exchequer, and in 1647 he was one of the commissioners appointed to administer the executive government in the room of the Marquess of Ormonde. He married Anne, daughter of Sir William Ussher, and from him are descended the baronets of Greenhills. (Burke's "Baronetage," s.n. Meredyth.)

Page 2. 'the Kinges ship called the 9th whelp'—In the "Travels of Sir William Brereton" (p. 164), under 25th July, 1635, this ship is mentioned. Whimsical as may be the designation, it is believed that it referred to the alias names of such vessels as 'barks.' ("Notes and Queries," 1st series, i., pp. 77, 106, 107.) Ibid. 'Coot.' See vol. ii., 300, and note.

„ 3. 'L. Calfeild's howse'—Sir Toby Caulfield, a distinguished soldier in Queen Elizabeth's wars in Ulster against O'Neil. In 1615 he was appointed one of the Council for the province of Munster; and the next year he was joined in the commission with the Lord Deputy, Sir Oliver St. John, for the distribution of lands in Ulster among the English and Scotch settlers. He was raised to the peerage of Ireland 22nd Dec., 1620, as Lord Caulfield, Baron Charlemont; and from his nephew, who succeeded to his honours, is descended the present Earl of Charlemont.

„ 4. 'a Trunck of aparell'—The items of costume are noticeable, because the Earl of Cork was now a Lord Justice of Ireland along with the Lord Chancellor, and we thus gather some idea of what the court dresses of the period were. Evidently men dressed in Elizabethan-Jacobean times with more of the riches and splendour of women than would now be tolerated.

- Page 5. 'Turmore' = great bleach green. This is a very ordinarily occurring place-name in the South of Ireland, and indicates that linen manufacture was once more general than it is at present. Ibid. 'October 26'—The ceremony of inaugurating the Lords Justices is interesting, but the want of amity between the administrators of justice is painful reading. Lord Aungier was Master of the Rolls. He died 8th October, 1632. The title has long been extinct, but a street in Dublin still preserves the family name.
- „ 6. 'Mr. Gwyn' = Roger Gwyn of Cork. See note to vol. ii., 333.
- „ 7. 'the post barque.'—See note on p. 13. Postal communication between the two countries was maintained by sailing vessels between Dublin and Chester. Ibid. 'Mr. Robert Kenedie'—Second Chamberlain of the Exchequer, Ireland, 12th Jan., 1610-11, and Chief Remembrancer, 3rd October, 1625. His son, Sir Robert Kennedy, knight and baronet, of Ballygarney, co. Wicklow, married Constance, daughter (by his wife Margaret, daughter and co-heir of Ralph Sankey of Fasore, Sheriff of Dublin 1590) of Jonas Silyard, Esq., and with other issue had a son, Sir Richard Kennedy, knight and baronet, second Baron of the Exchequer, 1661-81, who married Anne, daughter (by his wife Sarah, daughter of Bonham Norton, of Church Stretton, Salop) of Christopher Barker, Esq., and with several sons had two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Dr. Edmund Jones, Bishop of Cloyne, 1682-92, and of St. Asaph's, 1692-1703, and Bridget, married to the bishop's brother, Matthew Jones, prebendary of Cloyne, from the latter of whom my 'brother beloved,' Prebendary Hayman, is sixth in descent. See "Montgomeryshire Collections," vol. xii., pp. 239-54, Jones of Llwynnirid.

Page 8. 'Skiddies castle in Corke'—See vol. ii., pp. 233, 234, 242, and note on p. 233.

„ 9. 'Mr Ro. Talbott . . . Sir W^m Talbott'—Robert, younger son of Sir Thomas Talbot, Knight, of Malahide, co. Dublin, was father of William Talbot, who acquired the estate of Carton, in county of Kildare, and was created a baronet 4th Feb., 1622. Sir William Talbot was succeeded in his title by his son, the above Robert; but the baronetcy is now extinct.

„ 10. 'Bishop of Corke' = Dr. Richard Boyle, son of Michael Boyle of London, merchant.

„ 11. 'Sir Beverlie Newcomen'—Eldest son of Sir Robert Newcomen, of Kenagh, county of Longford, who had been created a baronet 30th Dec., 1623. He married Margaret, third daughter of Sir William Ussher, Knight, by whom he had a son and daughter. Sir Beverley Newcomen, who commanded 'The Swallow' man-of-war, was drowned at Passage, near Waterford, 28th April, 1637, together with his only son. Ibid. 'Mr seckerston.' See Introduction to vols. i. and ii.

Page 12. 'bed stedle' = bed settle. Bailey describes it "settle bed," a bed turned up so as to form a seat, or half canopy bed.

- „ 13. 'Ransackt'— Of this 'ransacking' Gilbert ("History of Dublin," vol. i., pp. 298-300) gives particulars which the 'curious reader' will turn to. Ibid. 'post barque and pacquet' (cf. pp. 16, 22, et alibi)— A regular postal communication between Dublin and England appears to have been first established during the wars of Shane O'Neil in the reign of Elizabeth, when, according to a contemporary chronicler, "because in these troublesome tymes it were mete y^t advertisements should goe to and from hir maiestie and counsell to the Lord Deputie, and so lykewise from his Lordship to them, order was taken for the more speedie conveiance of letters reciproke, that there should be set posts appointed betweene London and Ireland." In 1616 John Francis, the postmaster of Chester, had an allowance from the Treasurer of 6*d.* per mile for "carrying a packet from the Lord Deputy of Ireland, from Chester to York, to Sir Thomas Lake and Sir Humphrey May, Knights." In 1620, in the Pell records, is this entry:—"For keeping a bark at Holyhead, with furniture, to transport the packet to Ireland, and serving the post by land at x^{li} per month, after twenty eight days to the month . . . cxxx^{li} per annum." By an Irish ordinance of Cromwell, the postage of letters, both foreign and inland, were farmed to John Manley of London ; and it was covenanted "That the said John Manley shall maintain one or more packet-boats to pass and re-pass if not hindered by wind and weather, weekly, between Milford and Waterford and between Chester and Dublin, or to settle such other ways and means for a weekly correspondence between those places as may be equivalent for speed and security with the ways aforesaid." The gradual development of postal intercommunication with Ireland is an inviting and too long neglected subject. Ibid. 'portecorn' as before. Ibid. 'M'ffornly'—probably same with 'ffernly' on next page (p. 14).

Page 14. 'patrick Rely, titular primate of Ireland'—In the "Complete Catholic Directory," Patrick 'Fleming' is the titular Primate at this period. The Earl may have misheard or miswritten the name. Ibid. 'M' Cregg'—John Gregg was presented to the Deanery of Lismore 3rd April, 1618. He was the first Vicar of Trim. He died 21st January, 163 $\frac{2}{3}$, and was buried in Trim churchyard, where his tomb is still to be seen.

„ 15. 'The L. Mowntnorres'—Sir Francis Annesley, Knight, of Newport Pagnel, Bucks, was created a baronet of Ireland, upon the institution of that order by James I., and having filled the offices in the Irish Government of Vice-Treasurer and Secretary of State, he was raised to the peerage of that kingdom on 8th Feby., 162 $\frac{3}{4}$, as Baron Mount Norris, of Mount Norris, co. Armagh—title now extinct.

„ 16. 'Raphoe, now voyde by death'—This See had been vacant for six years. Andrew Knox, D.D., consecrated to it in 1611, had died 17th March, 162 $\frac{2}{3}$. Nor was it filled for a considerable period after. John Lesley, the next bishop of Raphoe, had letters patent 1st June, 1633. (Cotton's Fasti, iii., 350, 351.) Ibid. 'pilloring' = putting in the pillory. Ibid. 'censures' = judgments. See context.

- Page 17. 'my bonnest servant W^m newce.' See Notes and Illustrations, vol. i. 3. A townland in the parish of Murragh, Barony of East Carbery, is called Newcestown, and preserves his name. (Bennett's "History of Bandon," p. 13 and notes.) Ibid. 'lands of the phenixe' = Phoenix Park, Dublin, where is the Viceregal Lodge. This name is a corruption of fionn-uisg, i.e., clear or limpid water. A well of 'living water' is situated near the gate lodge of the Phoenix Park and fills the ponds of the Zoological Gardens, &c. By a blunder (not Irish) the Earl of Chesterfield, who was Lord Lieutenant in the year 1745, erected a pillar and placed on its summit a phoenix rising from its ashes!
- „ 18. 'dearest deer wife'—See full Memoir of the Earl for particulars concerning this illustrious lady.
- „ 19. 'Gookin.'—He was of a family seated at Ickham, Kent, and whose descents are given in the Heralds' Visitations of 1619 and 1665. Ibid. 'mourning clokes,' &c.—The usage of the time was an immediate private burial in the first instance (this took place on the day next after the Countess of Cork's decease, on Feby. 17th), and public ceremonials called 'funerals' (which in this case were observed March 11th), when preparations had been completed. See pp. 18, 20. The expenditure on the Countess's 'funeralles' was very great. "600^{li} with farr more moneis were disbursed," writes the Earl of Cork, "about my deer wives funeralls" . . . "the blacks and chardges of her fvneralles (over and above all expences in my howse) did amount vnto some what above one Thowsand marckes ster." Our present time is witness to increasing simplicity and modesty on such occasions.

Page 20-1. 'my decaied howse.'—Gilbert commences his "History of the City of Dublin" with "the Castle street," the *vicus castr*i of Anglo-Irish legal records, and so named from its proximity to the Castle of Dublin, the official residence of the Lords Deputy; but he does not identify Lord Cork's 'howse.' Could it have been 'Preston's Inns,' which in 1610 belonged to William Fenton, Sir Geoffrey's only son?

„ 21. 'Strongbowe's Tombe.'—Of this interesting monument a full account will be found in Gilbert's "History of Dublin" (vol. i., pp. 112-13). Until the middle of the 18th century bonds, rents, and bills of exchange were usually made payable at this spot.

„ 23. 'dutches of Lennox.'—She was Katherine, only daughter and heir of Sir Gervase Clifton, Lord Clifton; and was married to Esme Stuart, 3rd Duke of Lennox, who died 30th July, 1624, and was buried in Westminster Abbey (see Chester's "Register of Westminster Abbey," s.n.). She was married, secondly, to James, Earl of Abercorn, and was granted by Charles I. a royal letter declaring that notwithstanding her second marriage she should retain the title and rank of Duchess of Lennox.

Page 24. 'viscount Rannyllagh'—Sir Roger Jones, raised to the peerage of Ireland 25th August, 1628, by the title of Baron Jones of Navan and Viscount Ranelagh. By his wife, Frances, second daughter of Garret Moore, first Viscount Drogheda, he had a son, Arthur, who married the Lady Katharine Boyle, fifth daughter of the Earl of Cork—"my Kate" and "Katy" as her father affectionately styles her presently.

„ 27. 'Tharchrebell of the Birnes country.'—The sept of the Byrnes inhabited what is now known as the county of Wicklow, dividing it with another Irish clan called the O'Tooles. The Byrnes held the sea-board of the district, and they had also the northern parts on the western side of the Ranelagh mountains. These latter were known in Elizabeth's reign as Pheagh Mac Hugh's country, from the name of the then chieftain. In 1597 Pheagh Mac Hugh fell in an engagement with the Lord Deputy (Russell). In 1600 his son and successor Phelim Mac Pheagh made humble submission to the Queen; and in 1605 his territory, along with that of the O'Tooles, was, during the lieutenancy of Chichester, made shire ground under the designation of Wicklow county. In 1629 Phelim's grandson, Maurice Byrne, rose in insurrection, for which he suffered death, as here recorded.

„ 29. 'Lancaster'—He was son of John Lancaster, who, having been chaplain to James I., was appointed Bishop of Waterford by patent, 26th Feb., 1607. By his father he was appointed Præcentor of Waterford. He was also præcentor of Lismore, prebendary of Disert, and fellow of the college of Youghal. In 1617 he obtained the vicarage of Mothel from the Crown. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Harris, Justice of the Common Pleas. He died 18th April, 1630. Ibid. 'donnarayle' = Doneraile. In the 'Book of Lismore' this lovely locality is called Dun-air-aill, i.e., the fort on the cliff. The 'dun' exists in a perfect state just within the entrance to Creagh Castle, on the left hand. It is of great size, the diameter being fifty yards or more. The rampart stands eight feet high, and the fosse remains unfilled. Doneraile was granted by Elizabeth to Sir Francis Waynman, of whom it was purchased by Sir William St. Leger. It has since continued with his descendants the Viscounts Doneraile.

Page 30. 'Lewis & Hodge.'—The former was created Viscount Boyle, of Kynalmeaky, by privy seal dated at Westminster 30th November, 1627, and by patent 28th February, 1627. Hodge (a child-name for 'Roger') became the illustrious Earl of Orrery. Perhaps the Editor of these "Lismore Papers" will be excused in saying that it had been better and now would be better for Ireland if her nobles followed the precedent of the Earl of Cork, and had their sons educated at Trinity College, Dublin. I fear a filius nobilis among the University's students is seldom seen.

Page 31. 'deer wives Tombe.'—We have here the designer's name of this mausoleum, about the site of which, in St. Patrick's cathedral, so much painful discussion between the Lord Deputy Wentworth and the Earl of Cork arose about four years afterwards. (Cf. Lodge, in his "Peerage of Ireland," vol. i., 163 note.) The issue was the taking down of the tomb from its original position and its re-erection at the south side of the communion-table, where it now stands. Laud intermeddled characteristically. (Bagwell's "Ireland Under the Tudors," 2 vols., 8vo., 1885, s.n.) Ibid. 'an vnripe Matche,' &c. —It might be well called so; for the Lady Margaret Boyle was at the time but twelve months old. This early plighting of the children of nobles was a feature of the time. It now makes us think of India rather than England. The wonder is that on the whole the thing issued so well as it did.

„ 32. 'must present plate.'—Was this a spontaneous or a necessary presentation? At some seminaries in our own day young people are required to bring with them silver spoons and forks. Ibid. 'Mr Boyle, the blynde Scottish preacher'—He is mentioned more than once in Volume I. Ibid. 'gnyves' = gneeves, as before.

„ 33. 'Tapestry . . . weathers'—Of tapestry the Earl of Cork seems to have been fond. 'Weathers' has been explained to me by an Irish scholar as = wainscotting of some kind. But query = wethers, sheep? Ibid. 'Mr Guyn' = (probably) Arthur Gwynn, M.A., appointed Archdeacon of Lismore

28th March, 1638—"a man who had so much abused the Earl of Cork and disobeyed the Parliament, that it was fit he should be put under restraint," as quoted by Cotton (Fasti, "Ecc. Hib." i. 184), from a complaint of Gwynn made in 1642 by Joshua Boyle, a cousin of the Earl of Cork.

Page 34. 'marten skyns.'—When Ireland was covered with woods—as it was up to the Earl of Cork's time—squirrels and martens were very common, and their skins were articles of commerce. The graceful Squirrel (Sciurus vulgaris, Linnæus) is nearly extinct in Ireland, and the Marten (Mustela abietum) is rare. Might not some patriotic Irishmen see to the preservation of both ere it be too late? Ibid. 'standishe' = inkstand. Ibid. 'cor' of piponders' = court of pie-powder—French pie, foot, and poudreux, dusty. It was a court held in fairs to do justice to buyers and sellers, and for the redress of all disorders committed at them. It is so designated because the suitors of this court were commonly country people with dusty feet; or from the despatch in determining the causes even before the dust goes off their feet. (BAILEY, s. v.)

„ 35. 'Nayler.'—Robert Nayler, M.A., was a prebendary of Cloyne in 1628, and was made Dean of Lismore in 1629-30. In 1640 he was appointed to the deanery of Limerick. In the Rebellion of 1641 he was plundered of property to the amount of £1,797, beside his church preferment, worth, communibus annis, £500 [MS. T. C. D., F. 2, 13]. He died in 1661. A high testimony is borne to his exemplary character by the fact that, in 1662, the Convocation subscribed liberally to the support of his destitute widow and children (MS. Lambeth, 684). Ibid. 'chapple-I-solde' = Chapelizod, three miles from Dublin to the west, and containing old English monuments. Ibid. 'a Tombe'—See on p. 31.

- Page 36. 'Ballydergan' = Ballyderown, in the barony of Condons and Clangibbons. Here also must have been the woods of 'Kilcoran,' and not of Youghal, where was the Kilcoran associated with Edmund Spenser's wooing and betrothal.
- „ 37. 'Asketton' = Askeaton, in co. Limerick. Ibid. 'Tomgyly' = Tomgraney, in co. Clare.
- „ 40. 'Knockmoarn' = Knockmourne, near Tallord, in co. Waterford.
- „ 41. 'my Musicons'—See Introduction to vols. i. and ii. It would seem these performers wore livery. Ibid. 'murrey cloath' = French moreau, jet black.
- „ 42. 'cantreds' = hundreds (COWELL, s. v.)—an Anglo-Norman term introduced into Ireland. BAILEY, s. v., derives it from cent, hundred; creff (British), a town. Ibid. 'Sir Morris Griffith'—This military personage had a commission addressed to him, with others, to try by martial law all unruly soldiers of the 'new supply,' under the command of Lord Grandison. (See "Patent and Close Rolls," 3 Caroli I., part 3, membrane 19.)
- „ 43. 'a yonge prince.'—This 'prince' was Charles, born 29th May, 1630, crowned 23rd April, 1661, and "our most religious king," the second Charles. Ibid. 'municons' = munitions.

Page 44. 'Pirates'—These marauders infested the Channel, until the vigour of the Parliamentary sea-generals dispersed them.

„ 45. 'cartron'—Like 'cantred,' this is a word introduced by the Anglo-Norman settlers in Ireland. It signifies a quarter (quarteron in French, from the mediæval Latin quarteronus), and was applied to a parcel of land varying in amount from 60 to 100 acres. In the co. Waterford, not far from Lismore, there are lands called by the English title 'quarter,' i.e. of a townland; but in Connaught, the word 'Cartron,' either singly or in combination with other titles, is more common.

„ 47. 'Hoath' = Howth. Ibid. 'Bewmarys' = Beaumaris.

„ 49. 'Scott the searcher' = King's searcher, an officer of customs. Ibid. 'the lady Ophaly'—She was daughter and sole heir of Gerald, Lord Offaley, and grand-daughter of Gerald, eleventh earl of Kildare. She was married to Sir Robert Digby, of Coleshill in Warwickshire, by whom she had a numerous issue. Her husband died 24th May, 1628, and in two years after she was created Baroness Offaley for life. Her name is still lustrous from her heroic defence of her castle of Geashill in the King's co. in 1642. Having sustained a close siege for several months, she received a final summons to surrender, with promise of safe convoy to the nearest English station, or the alternative of "no quarter" after a storm. Her brave letter in reply, and declinature, is historical. It thus closes: "Though I have been and still am desirous to avoid the shedding of Christian blood, yet being provoked, your threats shall no whit dismay me.—LETTICE OFFALLIE.” Succours arrived in due time, and the lion-hearted Lady Offaley was relieved. Ibid. ‘Bishop Nolan’—Unknown, apparently.

„ 51. ‘Lord Chancellor’ = Adam, Viscount Loftus, of Ely, as before; the ‘Lord of Valencia’ = Sir Henry Power, so created 1st March, 1620; the ‘L. Rannelagh’ = Sir Roger Jones, as under, p. 24; the ‘lo. dockwraie’ = Sir Henry Dockwra; the ‘Lord Mountnorreis’—see under, p. 15; ‘Sir John Burlace’ = Sir John Borlase, author of the “History of the Irish Rebellion;” ‘the Lord President of Munster’ = Sir William St. Leger, of Doneraile; ‘Mr Robert Meredith’—see note on page 22, et alibi; ‘Sir Robert Loftus,’ eldest son of the Lord Chancellor; he died in his father’s lifetime, leaving an only daughter, Anne, wife of Richard Lennard Barrett, of Bellhouse, Essex; ‘Sir Edward Loftus’ was the Chancellor’s second son, and successor in the title of Ely; he married Jane, daughter and co-heir of Arthur Lindley, of Middleham Castle, Yorkshire, and dying 11th April, 1680, left a son, Arthur, third Viscount Ely, who died without male issue, 6th Nov., 1725, when the title became extinct.

„ 52. ‘defalck’—“to defalk [defalquer French, defalcare Latin], to cut off, to abate or deduct”—BAILEY, s.v. Ibid. ‘Sir Randall Cleyton’—He had estates at Mallow, where for some generations his descendants resided. The funeral certificate of John Clayton of Doneraile, co. Cork, son of John Clayton of Thelwall, co. Chester, is entered in Ulster's office, Dublin. He died 1st July, 1637. See p. 19, &c. Ibid. 'Sir Edward Bagshaw'—He was collector of the Customs of Dublin, Skerries, and Malahide. In the Patent Rolls, 4 Charles I. (pt. 3, memb. 21), his name comes up in Grants, &c.

Page 53. 'Sir Jo. ffynch' = Speaker of the House of Commons in 1627; Attorney-General to the Queen in 1635; Justice of the Common Pleas in 1636; Chief Justice in 1638. In 1639 he was made Lord Keeper of the Great Seal; and 7th April, 1640, he was raised to the peerage as Baron Finch of Fordwich, co. Kent. He died without male issue, 20th Nov., 1660, when the title became extinct. Ibid. 'dedimus potestatem'—A legal term which is thus explained by BAILEY, s.v.: "A writ whereby commission is given to a private man for the speeding of some Act appertaining to a Judge; by the Civilians it is called Delegation." Ibid. 'Askeating' = Askeaton, in co. Limerick, as before. Ibid. 'Broghill' = a townland in the parish of Ballyhea, co. Cork. It is of repute as having given a title to the Earl of Cork's son Roger, who was born at Lismore (as recorded in vol. ii., 14) 25th April, 1621, and before he was seven years old was created Lord Boyle, Baron of Broghill, by Privy Seal dated at Westminster 30th Nov., 1627, and by Patent at Dublin 28th Feb., 1627. By further letters patent dated at Westminster 5th Sept., 1660, he was advanced to the dignity of Earl of Orrery, after the name of the barony or hundred of which Broghill—his inferior title—was a townland.

The word 'Orrery' is of world-wide renown, and its etymology will therefore interest the student-reader. Orbh, a descendant of Fereidhech, son of Fergus MacRoigh, King of Ulster in the 1st century, was an Irish regulus or toparch, who, according to Keltic usage, conferred his name on his clansmen, called from him Orbhraighe, i.e., Orbh's posterity. The tribe's name, in accordance with another custom of Ireland, was affixed upon the territory where they dwelt, and Orbhraighe, pronounced 'Orvery,' and, slightly modified, 'Orrery,' has been for many centuries the designation of the northern part of Cork county, adjacent to the town of Charleville. How few there are who, when naming the familiar mechanical contrivance for showing the movements of the planets round the sun, know that in calling it an 'Orrery' they are using an Irish place-name!

Page 54. 'Rascall deer' = lean deer. 'Rascal,' Saxon, a beast out of condition, a mean, worthless fellow. Ibid. 'Moalloe' = Mallow. Ibid. 'Sir John Clotworthy' — This distinguished officer, for his zeal in promoting the restoration of Charles II., was raised to the peerage of Ireland 21st Nov., 1660, as Baron of Loughneagh and Viscount Massareene, with remainder to his son-in-law, Sir John Skeffington, who had married Mary Clotworthy, his only child and heir. John Howe—most illustrious of Non-conformists—found a pleasant retreat with the Massareene family on the shore of Lough Neagh. The title is still worthily sustained.

Page 56. 'Greatraks'—See vol. ii., 333, note. Ibid. 'christened' = gave name at baptism. See vol. ii., 192.

„ 57. 'cre Ewstace' = Eustace's district. Crioch, Irish, means a boundary, but, like the Latin finis, it was extended to the territory of which the boundary was marked. Ibid. 'preachers dynner.'—See vol. ii., p. 14, note.

„ 58. 'Barnabie Tottenham'—See vol. ii., 281, note.

„ 61. 'cartion,' recte 'cartron,' or quarter of a townland. This term is supposed to have been introduced into Ireland by the Anglo-Norman settlers, and to have been derived from the French quarteron.

„ 62. 'o Boyles country.' Boyle, as a family name, is found in Scotland and Ireland (O'Baioighill). It is also a place-name. In Donegal is the barony of Boylagh, i.e., the territory of the O'Boyles. In Roscommon, Boyle is the name of a barony, parish, town, and river; and its abbey was one of the chief Cistercian Friaries of Ireland. The "Annals" compiled there comprise Irish events from the earliest period to A.D. 1245. They were translated and edited by John D'Alton, M.A., J.A. (2 vols. 8vo., 1845). The 'o Boyle's country' of text was probably Boylagh, co. Donegal.

„ 63. 'Sir Edward Harrys'—He was Chief Justice of Munster, and by patent, 27th Oct., 1623, was further appointed to be one of the Justices of the King's Bench, Ireland. He died 4th April, 1636, and was buried in the church of Kilcreden, co. Cork, where stands still his mural tomb.

Page 64. 'the howse & lands of the phenixe.' The 'house' stood, in all probability, on the site of the present residence of the Lords Lieutenant of Ireland. The 'lands' were the well-chosen magnificent 'Park.' See former note on page 17. Ibid. 'mounsier' = the French tutor of his sons.

„ 65. 'Mr W^m Snell'—The appointments mentioned were not carried out. Snell's name occurs in no lists of Deans of Ross, or of the ministers of Christ's Church, Cork. Ibid. 'Mr Bartholomew pritze,' recte 'Price'—often mentioned before. Ibid. 'Frances Boyle' = Francis. His kinsmen were legion, and the "Great Earl" showed infinite patience in providing for them.

„ 66. 'the Dutchess of Lennox.' See former note on page 23.

„ 67. 'Mr Nicholas white, son and heir of Sir Nicholas whyte'—He was grandson, being the son of Andrew Whyte, son and heir of Sir Nicholas Whyte, Master of the Rolls, Ireland, 1572-78. At the time of attaining this high legal position Sir Nicholas Whyte was Seneschal of Wexford. Later, for "abusing and non using of his said office of the Mastership of the Rolls" he was "sequestered;" and, according to a MS. in the College of Arms, London, "died in the Tower of London, prisoner." His grandson, Nicholas White, was of Leixlip, co. Kildare. He married Ursula, eldest daughter of Sir Garrett Moore, Baron Moore of Mellifont, 1616, and Viscount Moore of Drogheda, 1621 : and left issue. Ibid. 'Capⁿ Luke Nitingale'—He was of Ballygran, co. Wexford. In Ulster's office is the Fun. Certif., A.D. 1632, of Isabel, wife of Luke Nightingale, Esq., of Ballygran.

Page 68. 'Sir W^m Reeves'—He was of a Dorset family, whose pedigree is given in the Visitation of 1623, where his name appears as the sixth son of "John Ryves of Damery Court, in com. Dorset," and of his wife, "Elizabeth, daughter of John Marvin, of Fountell, Wilts." Sir William was appointed Attorney-General of Ireland by patent at Westminster, 30 Oct. 1619. At the accession of Charles I. he received a new grant of his office, 13 April, 1625. On the death of Sir Edward Harris he was appointed third Justice of the King's Bench, Ireland, by privy seal 7 August, and by patent 6 December, 1636. He died in 1660. Ibid. 'The Lady Ashe, of Trym'—She was Elizabeth, wife of Sir Thomas Ashe, to whom James I. granted the rectories, churches, and chapels of the Blessed Virgin Mary of Trim and Kildalkey. The late Dean Butler, in his "Notices of the Castle and of the Ecclesiastical Buildings of Trim" (Dublin, 1861), gives many notices of the Ashe family. In the chancel of St. Patrick's Church, Trim, on a flat stone, is a partly obliterated inscription of which the opening couplet may be given—

"Love and Age have joined as one
To lay these two under this stone,"

i.e. Sir Thomas and Lady Elizabeth Ashe.

John Tottenham, of Ballyloskeran, co. Wexford, married Katherine, daughter of John Atkin, of Polemore, co. Cork (Burke's "Landed Gentry," . . . "Tottenham of Woodstock"). Powlmoar = Pullmore, i.e., the great Pill or estuary (being near the creek of the Fanisk river), is a townland in the parish of Cloynepriest, near Youghal, co. Cork. Ibid. 'New yeares guifte'—Throughout the Diary it is noteworthy that the Earl of Cork always reckons the 1st of January as the first day of the New Year; while the change of style, by which the same day begins the legal year, was not made until 1752. Ibid. 'King of denmarcks meddal.' See several notices of the 'King' and his gifts in vol. i.

„ 70. 'St' patricks church, in Dublin . . . my wives Tombe.'—See p. 171, for particulars of this Mausoleum.

„ 71. 'lent the King'—On these royal loans—'ayds' as they were euphemistically called—see vol. ii., pp. 53, 286, et alibi. Ibid. 'Sir John Cook' = Coke, spelling interchanged. Ibid. 'poor penconers,' &c.—Lord Cork had always very tender remembrances of the humble and friendless. See page 82.

„ 72. 'Serieant Cattulyne'—Nathaniel Catelyn, the Recorder of Dublin, was appointed Second Sergeant-at-Law in Ireland, by patent 26 Oct., 1627. He held this office for ten years. William Sambach, Recorder of Knockfergus, was appointed 14 April, 1637, vice 'Catelyn, deceased.' Ibid. 'libel'—The 'Great Earl' acted with much self-respecting dignity in regard to the 'libels' and malignant slanders of his enemies. Ibid. 'Gookin'—He was of a Kentish family, seated at Ickham, about five miles east of Canterbury. The phrasing 'freely, . . . for ought known to me,' &c., is suggestive of the venality and semi-extortions wherewith titles were bought and sold.

- Page 73. 'earnest' = payment, as pledge or precursor of the bargain, Scotice 'earles.' Ibid. 'our Ironworcks in the county of Letrym.'—We have here further evidence of the Earl of Cork's industry and zeal in developing the mineral wealth of his adopted country. See p. 75. Ireland abounds in minerals, but their exploration has been mere scratching hitherto.
- „ 74. 'Kynalmeakie'—Kinalmeaky is a barony or hundred in the county of Cork, which gave the title of Viscount to Lord Cork's fourth son, Lewis Boyle.
- „ 75. 'reedifie the Tower'—Not Birmingham Tower (the 'keep' of Dublin Castle), but a castle contiguous to the Earl of Cork's mansion-house, now demolished. See Gilbert's "History of Dublin," vol. ii., p. 6. Ibid. 'enbale'—The 'h' to be noted here and elsewhere. How is it that 'h' is only in England thus abused, i.e., never in Scotland or Ireland?
- „ 76. 'my howse in Dublin.'—Gilbert, in his 'History of Dublin' (vol. ii., pp. 3-9), notices this mansion, which was called from its founder 'Cork House,' and which conferred on the rising ground adjacent the Castle, the title of Cork Hill, its present designation.

Page 77. 'my L. of Kildares schenescall' = steward or deputy.

Ibid. 'vallentyne' = sweetheart ; but in the Earl's instance we may assume of a platonic character. See on p. 81. The expression itself brings with it dreams of Elizabethan poesy. But query = the ring itself the 'vallentyne'? See page 78.

„ 79. 'the Barronett osborn'—Sir Richard Osborne, of Ballyntaylor, co. Waterford, was created a Baronet of Ireland, 26 January, 1623. He died in 1667. From him descend the Osbornes of Beechwood (see Burke's "Baronetage," s. n.). Ibid. 'Kildare Hall.'—See further notice in p. 82.

„ 80. 'salte howse in yoghall' = manufactory of salt. This trade is still pursued in Youghal. See vol. i., 148, and relative note. I embrace the present opportunity of supplementing my former note. I there pronounce the expression 'salte upon salte' to be 'obscure.' The following quotation clears it up:—
"This place is also most convenient for the erecting of salt-pans for the making of 'Salt upon Salt.' For that the harbour is so good that, at all times, ships may come unto them with salt from Mayo, or Spanish salt, to make brine or pickle ; and also the Caravels from Newcastle with coals for the boiling of it at the cheapest rates, at any time may come thither." (1614. "England's Way to win Wealth," &c., by Tobias Gentleman, in Arber's "English Garner," vol. iv., 338.)

„ 81. 'drew me for her vallentyne'—See note on p. 77.

Menage, in his "Etymological Dictionary," states that Madame Royale, daughter of Henry IV. of France, having built a palace near Turin, which in honour of the saint, then in high esteem, she called 'St. Valentine,' at the first entertainment given in it, was pleased to order that the ladies should receive their lovers for the year by lots, reserving to herself the privilege of being independent of chance, and of choosing her own partner. At the various balls during the year, the Princess further directed that each lady should receive a nosegay from her lover, and that at every tournament the knight's trappings for his horse should be furnished by his allotted lady, with the proviso that the prize obtained should be hers. The English 'drawing of valentines' is continually referred to in the 18th century, e.g., in Poor Robin's Almanac for 1676, under St. Valentine's Day; John Dunton's "British Apollo," and "The Gentleman's Magazine" in 1779. Hone, in his "Every Day Book," devotes nine pages to the custom.

Page 82. 'Wice'—Delete in text [Wire?]. It is = Wise or Wyse—a leading family name in co. Waterford. Ibid. 'Kildare Hall'—See p. 79. It was evidently named after the Earl of Kildare, its joint founder with the Earl of Cork. It was designed to be used weekly for Religious Lectures, like those which the latter had established at Tallagh, co. Waterford. Ibid. 'John Gore'—He was Archdeacon of Lismore from 1616 to 1638. Ibid. 'Ballingarry' = the townland of the garden, is a commonplace name in Ireland. There are two towns, one in Tipperary and one in Limerick, so called. The latter is here intended.

- Page 83. 'Sir John Denham' — Pleasant to thus repeatedly chance on the Poet's name. Ibid. '5 faggotts of steel' — A fagot of steel = 120 lbs. [Bailey's Dictionary, s.v.], and was certainly cheap at xl^s.
- „ 84. 'Hoath' = the now well-known 'Howth,' 9 miles N.E. of Dublin.
- „ 85. 'good Lady Alice ffenton' — See full Memoir of the 'Great Earl' prefixed to the 2nd series of these Lisimore Papers.
- „ 86. 'Kynataloun' = Kinnatalloon, a barony, or hundred, in co. Cork.
- „ 87. 'ensign Greatreaks' — See vol. ii., p. 431, on this family. Richard Greatrakes was an officer in Lord Barrymore's regiment. Vide RUSHWORTH, s.n. For his military services he had a grant of lands in Ireland. The enrolments of certificates for soldiers are preserved in the Chief Remembrancer's Office, Dublin; ad Roll xxix., membrane 80, containing the grant to 'Richard Gratrix.' In the latter spelling, the name still occurs in Lincolnshire and elsewhere.
- „ 88. 'earle of Londonderry' = Sir Thomas Ridgeway, created Earl 23 Aug., 1622. Ibid. 'Lexa' = Leix, now Abbeyleix, a town in Queen's County, 7 miles S.S.E. from Maryborough. Ibid. 'bawn' — See on this vol. ii., 103. Ibid. 'Baltinglass' — A town in co. Wicklow, 28 miles S.S.W. from Dublin. In ancient Irish documents, such as the 'Dinnsennchus,' it is called Bealach-Chonglais = the Pass of Cuglas. Ibid. 'perfidious Rogue Richard Blacknoll' — See vols. i. and ii., and elsewhere on this over-trusted agent.

Page 89. 'the Turkes surprizall of Baltemore' = Baltimore (in Irish Baile-an-tighe-mhoir, i.e., the townland of the great house) is distant about 7 miles from Skibbereen, co. Cork. Here in the early part of the 17th century was an English colony, planted by Sir Thomas Crook, who has been several times mentioned in this Diary. On the 20th June, 1631, a terrible disaster happened to this colony. In the dead of the night two Algerine rovers landed their men and, having plundered the place, the corsairs made a great number of the inhabitants prisoners and carried them off to Algiers. They were piloted into Baltimore harbour by a Dungarvan fisherman named Hacket, who was for this offence subsequently arrested and hanged. Thomas Davis, in his spirited poem "The Sack of Baltimore," has described this dreadful occurrence.

„ 90. 'a ffalcon and a Tercell' — A tercel is with falconers, a male hawk, so called because it is a third part less than the female in bigness and strength (BAILEY, s.v.). Ibid. 'trayn' is the tail of a hawk (ibid.). Ibid. 'Tarcell Jentills wing' = female falcon. Hawking was evidently a favourite pastime with the aristocracy of this reign. Ibid. 'Neste of boxes' — a vivid term to be noted. Ibid. 'Lo. Scudamour' — John Scudamore, of Holme Lacy, was created Baron of Dromore and Viscount Scudamore of Sligo, by letters patent, 2 July, 1628. He was grandson of

Sir John Scudamore, gentleman usher of Queen Elizabeth, who by some commentators, is identified with the Sir Scudamore of the "Faerie Queene."

- Page 91. 'Ladie of offalie' = the Lady Lettice Fitzgerald, daughter of Gerald, Lord Offaley, and wife of Sir Robert Digby; her name occurs frequently in this Diary, early and later.
- „ 92. 'sturgeon' = the royal fish. Ibid. 'Lymons' = lemons. This is the present pronunciation of the word by the humbler classes of Cork county, illustrative of the fact, long since enunciated, that many (so called) "vulgarisms" are but the retention of forms of speech that have become obsolete with educated folks. The Earl of Cork very often wrote phonetically.
- „ 93. 'my ffifte son Robert Boyle'—Every circumstance relative to this great man is of quick interest. Here is provision of Irish estates made for him by his father. Ibid. 'my Iron'—It is evident from p. 95 ("carrying this . . . iron to yoghall") that the smelting was done at the Earl's furnaces near Cappoquin, in the Broadwater, or, as it is now called, the Blackwater. "Lighters" carried the iron to the seaport of Youghal, for shipment to England and elsewhere.
- „ 96. 'gascoigne' = wine of Gascony, which was extensively used at this period.
- „ 97. 'Rings end'—See vol. ii., p. 340 and note.
- „ 98. 'I departed Dublin'—In our days of rapid locomotion let us follow, for contrast's sake, the Earl of Cork and his company in their present journey to Lismore. They leave the metropolis August 10, and rest that night at 'Cre Ewstace' (now Ballymore Eustace), about 24 miles from Dublin; next day they reach Gowran, co. Kilkenny, 52 miles; August 12 they are at Clonmel, shire town of Tipperary, $82\frac{1}{2}$ miles; and on the fourth day they come to Lismore in safety, about $109\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the metropolis—easily done now in about $6\frac{1}{2}$ hours, and that without English railway speed.

- Page 99. 'counterpase' = ticket, or docket, of release. Ibid.
 'W^m Noye' = attorney-general of England.
- „ 100. 'Galleris'—Callaros Eighter (i.e. lower) and Callaros Oughter (i.e. upper) are townlands in the parish of Kilmore, barony of Carbery West, co. Cork, and are in all probability the lands here alluded to. See vol. i., 63 and note. Ibid. 'Read'—'Ferrom'—'Snell'—These clergymen are frequently named previously. We have now for the first time the name of "my sons tutor" Mr. ffrye.
- „ 101. 'thabbey side of dongarvan'—Still so called. It was the portion of the town on that side of the harbour where stood the Augustinian Friary. Ibid. 'Ringrone near Kinsale' = Ringrone, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Kinsale, on the opposite side of the river Bandon.
- „ 102. 'He bwylding theron'—We have here plain evidence of the English colonists' insecurity when they settled themselves in their allotments. Ibid. 'lyme, stone' = lime-stone. Ibid. 'coppicing' = making copses. Ibid. 'leaving standards' = good trees, like sentinels or banner-bearers. Ibid. 'Strongbowes tombe'—See on this vol. i., p. 16. Ibid. 'no money,' &c.—Thomas Dekker contemporaneously gives many graphic examples of the 'sharp practice' of lenders when the exact day and hour were not kept. See his non-dramatic works in "The Huth Library" of the Editor.

Page 105. 'Mr Gerrott ffitz gerald of dromany' = Sir Gerald Fitzgerald, of Dromana, co. Waterford, eldest son of Sir John Oge Fitzgerald and his wife Elinor, daughter of James, Lord Dunboyne. This 'wardship' was created because of Sir John Fitzgerald's decease, 1 March, 1626-7.

„ 106. '5th whelp'—See present vol., p. 2 and note. Ibid. 'The house of Nonnes'—See mention of it in Gilbert's "History of Dublin," vol. iii., pp. 2, 3. It was situated on Hoggen Green.

„ 107. 'a waiters place'—A tide-waiter is an officer who watches the landing of goods at the Custom House. Ibid. 'Mr Justice Mayart'—Samuel Maiart, Esq., by privy seal 21 July, 1625, and by patent 19 January, 1626-7, was appointed a Justice of the Common Pleas, Ireland, in the room of Gerald Lowther, deceased. He died in 1660. Ibid. 'Sworne Lo. High Treasurer of Ireland'—Lodge (Irish "Peerage," vol. i., 157), tells us that the date of the Earl of Cork's 'appointment' was 12 October previously, the interval between this and his being 'sworne' on 5 November, being doubtless required to make out his Patent. He is represented in his great mausoleum in St. Mary's Church, Youghal, as holding in his right hand a purse, indicative of this high dignity.

Page 108. '3 monethes victualling of his ma^ts ship'—What straits for money on the part of the Crown is here revealed, when the supply of provisions to a royal ship was thrown upon a subject (the Earl of Cork)! The wonder is that in Elizabethan-Jacobean and even Carolian times, subjects submitted to such exactions.

„ 109. 'gneves.' See on this vol. ii., p. 11. Ibid. 'gallan'—'Gallanes' is a townland in the parish of Kilnagross, barony of East Carbery, co. Cork. There must have existed here at some period a remarkable pillar-stone, with possibly a stone circle. These memorials of Pagan ages are known in Ireland as Gallans or Leegauns, and they precisely resemble the hoar-stones of England, the hare-stanes of Scotland, and the maen-gwyr of Wales. In West Cork are many monumental pillar-stones; on which Ogham inscriptions remain and have been mostly deciphered. As suggested by the preceding, I query if the stone called the 'bore-stone' on which Bruce planted his standard at Bannockburn was not originally one of these 'hoar-stones'?

„ 111. 'Bishop of Killaloe'—According to Cotton's Fasti (i. 464), the see of Killaloe was not vacant until a year after this, when Bishop Ryder died at Killaloe, 12 Nov., 1632. It was then filled, not by the appointment of Dean Andrews, here recommended, but by that of Lewis Jones, Dean of Cashel. Ibid. 'firste borne childe'—Was baptized 'Elizabeth'

23 Dec., but, as noted, died 3 March following.
Ibid. 'Homage'—A relic of feudal service, observed when the lord of a manor held his court leet annually.

- Page 113. 'Sterlock,' recte 'Sherlock'—A name of respectability yet to be found at Waterford.
- „ 115. 'Kings composicon'—On this impost see vol. ii., 3, 307. Ibid. 'Ware' = the afterwards eminent antiquary and Irish historian. He was son of Sir James Ware, Auditor-General of Ireland. In 1629 he was knighted; and in 1632, on his father's death, he succeeded to his office.
- „ 116. 'I licensed' = gave leave; doubtless a sub-reference to the passport system then in force.
- „ 118. '3 Subsadies'—The maintenance of the English forces in Ireland during this year was a sore burden to the Irish people. Subsidies were levied when needed; and were extorted vi et armis, by quartering soldiers until the sums demanded were paid.
- „ 119. 'L. Beaumont'—Sir Thomas Beaumont, of Cole Orton, M.P., was raised to the Irish peerage as Viscount Beaumont of Swords, in 1622.
- „ 121. 'peec of plate'—See on this, a former note. Ibid. 'marybones' = marrow bones. Ibid. 'making any bones'—a happy equivoque, and the only one come on in this Diary.
- „ 122. 'waller'—He was son of George Waller, of Groombridge, co. Kent, and of his wife Mary, daughter of Richard Hardress. He married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Sir John Dowdall, with whom he received the manor of Castletown, co.

Limerick, which is yet held by his descendants (see Burke's "Landed Gentry"). Sir Hardress Waller was one of the Judges who sat at the trial of Charles I., for which he was tried and banished.

- Page 124. 'chaplens'—See on this, vol. ii, pp. 316, 426.
- „ 125. 'daughter dorotheie'—Her marriage articles bear date 4 March, 1624-5, when she was but eight years of age. She survived Sir Arthur Loftus, and married secondly Mr. Talbot. Ibid. 'Tomgely' = Tomgraney, co. Clare, is a parish that derives its name from the Lady Grian, who was buried there. Tuaim, cognate with tumulus, is the Irish name for a sepulchral barrow. It was "neer Askeating" (pp. 126, 128).
- „ 126. 'voyder' = a basket, in which broken meat is carried from the table. (CLEAVELAND, cited by JOHNSON, s. v.)
- „ 129. 'ffifte son Robert'—We have here a yet more detailed account of the Irish estates provided by his father for this illustrious man. See note on p. 93.
- „ 132. 'silver mynes'—Ardmore is in the co. of Waterford, distant about 4 miles from Youghal, on the opposite side of the Blackwater river. Tradition states that its lead mines, in which a proportion of silver is intermixed (as is customary) with the lead, were worked in the tenth century by the Danes. The great promontory forming Ardmore Bay is called from its mineral treasures, Minehead. We have here another glimpse into the wealth of resource in Ireland waiting to be developed. Ibid. 'Lady Vna Boyle.'—See Introduction to vols. i. and ii. She was Vna Bowrck [Burke], wife to Sir George Boyle; see vol. ii., 84.

„ 134. 'eldest brother John'—He had died 10 July, 1620, and hence probably the need of Lord Cork's giving a marriage-portion to his orphaned daughter Mary Boyle.

„ 136. '2 poor widdoes'—On this see Introduction to vols. iii.-v. (in vol. iii.). Ibid. 'Mall' = Mary—and me judice, prettier than our modern 'Moll.'

„ 137. 'Jeris' = Erris.

„ 139. 'abbey of Molomna'—See on this, vol. i., 230, and note. Molana Abbey, co. Waterford, was founded for Augustinians, by Maelan-faidh, about the year A.D. 501. It is about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles N.W. of Youghal, and stands on the islet of Dair-Iris in the river Blackwater. Its full history is admirably told by Prebendary Hayman in his "Notes and Records of the Ancient Religious Foundations at Youghal, co. Cork, and its Vicinity." (Youghal, 1859.)

„ 140. 'Recusant'—Bailey's definition is "Roman Catholics who refuse to submit to the Discipline of the Church of England." The story of their persecution at this time is saddening. Heavy pecuniary fines were levied on them because they refused to attend the churches in which the English Liturgy was read. Juries were fined (see p. 147) who refused to 'present' them. Alas! alas! for the crimes that have been done by Protestant against Catholic and Catholic against Protestant in the name of Religion !

- Page 141. 'Cambroly' = Cabinteeley, a village near Kingstown, about 6 miles from Dublin.
- „ 142. 'Tuezes'—delete, 'tweezers.'—What is meant is a small silver case for holding scissors, thimble, needles, bodkin, &c. 'Etui,' in French, 'Lady's Companion' in English. Ibid. 'comaundry of Anye'—See vol. ii., 97, and note. Ibid. 'prize wynes'—See vol. i., 20, and note.
- „ 144. 'son dongarvan'—A passage in the Irish "Peerage," vol. i., 169, throws light on this entry. Speaking of Lord Dungarvan, Lodge writes:—"4 June, 1632, he departed from Dublin to begin his travels into foreign kingdoms, with the allowance of £1,000 yearly (which was after augmented to £1,500); on his return he married, in the chapel of Skipton Castle in Craven, Yorkshire, 5 July, 1635, the Lady Elizabeth Clifford, daughter and heir to Henry, Earl of Cumberland." Lord Cork very shortly (July 1) writes, "about Dongarvan's marriadg," and (Aug. 24) of his proceeding on his "travailes."
- „ 145. 'Kynskidde' = Ringa skiddy, i.e. Skiddy, or Scudamore's Point, is a watering-place in the Cork river, nearly opposite to Queenstown. Rinn in Irish means a promontory.
- „ 147. 'Edward Staniburst'—Probably son or grandson of the Irish historian.
- „ 148. 'Merryan' = Merrion, a village situated on the southern side of Dublin Bay, about 3 miles from the city.

Page 149. 'father & mothers tomb'—This tomb yet survives in the parish church of Preston, near Faversham, Kent. Lodge gives the inscription at vol. i., p. 151, note.

„ 150. 'sore goshawke' = soar-hawk, with falconers, is a hawk so called from the first taking her from the eyrie till she has mewed or cast her feathers (BAILEY, s. v). Ibid. 'Greatreaks'—See on this name vol. ii., 333, and note, and in the present vol., on p. 87.

„ 153. 'Hancock'—On this, see vol. ii., 281, and note.

„ 154. 'facks'—"In falconry, the male of birds of sport" (BAILEY).

„ 155. 'his Ma. pleasure'—This royal dictation about the marriage of one of his nobility incidentally illustrates the character of unhappy Charles I.

„ 156. 'Sovereign'—The term, found before in this Diary (i., 409), is to be noted—it must have given dignity to a relatively humble function. Ibid. 'Mastrick' = Maestricht, the capital of Limburg, Holland, and so called from its river, the Maas or Meuse.

„ 158. 'Sir George Shurley . . . being destitute of readdy moneis'—In Smyth's "Law Officers of Ireland" (1839) we have not only the names of Irish legal functionaries from earliest times, but their stipends. Shurley was Chief Justice of the King's Bench, with a yearly salary of £300—a very modest income, even if we allow for the difference of the currency.

- Page 159. 'St patricks purgatory'—This famous resort of pilgrims and penitents was an island in Lough Dearg, co. of Donegal. In Mant's "History of the Irish Church" (i. 35, 86, and ii. 139-142) a very full account is given of its terrible mortifications, reminding us of Juggernaut. Or the reader will find yet more harrowing descriptions in a somewhat rare vol., "The Great Folly, Superstition, and Idolatry of Pilgrims in Ireland; especially that of St. Patrick's Purgatory." By the Rev. John Richardson, Rector of Belturbet, alias Annah. Dublin, 1727 (p. 163).
- „ 162. 'a faier new yrish Harp'—See Introduction to vols. i. and ii. It is here shown that the manufacture of harps in Ireland was carried on during this century. Ibid. 'ronlet of vskebagh' = runlet of whiskey. See p. 163.
- „ 163. 'a Waterford black frize'—Frieze of a superior character is yet made at Kilmacthomas, co. of Waterford. Orders are constantly received for it from England and the Continent of Europe. It might be largely developed. Ibid. 'burgloen' = Burgoyne. Ibid. 'herriott'—See vol. i., p. 285, on this. Ibid. 'mvisitians'—See Introduction to vols. i. and ii.
- „ 165. 'Mr Arthure Wilmott'—He had married a daughter of Sir Moyses Hill, but had no issue. In the "Peerage" his decease is said to have taken place three days earlier than is here stated.
- „ 166. 'Shonerally' = Shronecalliagh, hodie Strancally, a castle in the Blackwater, about midway between Lismore and Youghal. It is mentioned again in p. 189.

Page 167. 'The Recusants'—It is well to note better feelings than hitherto toward Roman Catholics.

„ 171. 'my wives Tombe'—His reverence for his beloved and lamented dead is a fine trait in the Earl of Cork. See further pp. 174, 175, of the transference to this tomb of remains of relatives.

„ 174. 'brave' = splendid.

„ 175. 'The Lady Mary Smith'—Her name is recorded on the great monument in St. Mary's Church, Youghal, with an epitaph. See Hayman, as before.

„ 176. 'her first son'—The hopes here expressed were not realized. This babe, born 20 January, was baptized 5 Feb. 163 $\frac{2}{3}$ (see pp. 179-80), as 'Richard'; but he died in infancy. Ibid. 'Mereyong' = Merrion, as before.

„ 178. 'Curbyunny' = Currabinny, near Carrigaline, co. Cork.

„ 180. 'Thomas Burt . . . dorothe Smythe'—We note that at this period the time of marriages was customarily in the evening, and the place the dwelling-house of the parties or of a friend, and still the usage in Scotland and in the United States of America and our colonies.

„ 181. 'young Travers.'—He was probably of the Cork family, who intermarried into the poet Spenser's family, and members of which in our day have been distinguished by splendid military achievements.

„ 183. 'The Gullane'—This is the place called "Gallan,"

- p. 264, from its pillar-stone. See note on it. Ibid.
 'Mr Cookram'—See full Memoir for the Epistle dedicatory, &c., as before.
- Page 185. 'a howse in my Almeshowes.'—This very useful charity is maintained according to the terms of its foundation, and shelters, as it has done from its founder's day, many a tired wayfarer.
- „ 187. 'In all Ireland . . . 2229 parishes, and no more.'—It were curious to know how far 1886 differs from 1633 in this respect.
- „ 189. 'ffarthing makers' = forgers' tokens. See on this,
 vol. iv., p. 158.
- „ 190. 'Turcks . . . angiers'—These marauders infested the Irish (and English) coast, until the vigour of Blake, the parliamentary sea-general, some years later dispersed and cowed them.
- „ 192. 'The sparualties' = the spiritualities of Killaloe.
- „ 195. 'Symon Gibbons.'—He was of Minehead, co. of Somerset. Several members of this family settled in co. Cork, and are still represented by prominent citizens of Cork and country gentlemen. The name is now spelled Gibbings, and the chief seat of the family is Gibbings' Grove, near Charleville.
- „ 196. 'Mrs An. Nevill (my daughter . . . her gentlewoman')
 —We hear a good deal in our day of "Lady Helps," but the thing is not at all new. Not alone in the Royal Household, as now, but in the "Stately Homes of England" and Ireland, sons and daughters of knights, squires, and gentry of "high degree" (surprisingly high sometimes) served as pages and maids of honour respectively (up to the 18th century), and felt and found no degradation in so being. Our first authentic memorial of Chaucer shows that he was a royal page or groom. Rymer gives a patent, 41 Edward III., granting him, then in his 39th year, an annuity of xx marks, by the title of Valettus noster, "our Valet." What a valet! What point it gives to the pseudo-true saying, "No man is a hero to his valet."

Page 198. 'Yoghall . . . two gates'—The Northern Gate of Youghal had outworks, terminating in a Barbican. The limekiln here mentioned came down to our own time. It was built on a portion of the beach or strand between the Barbican and the North Gate proper.

„ 202. 'Lowsie hill' = Hogges Hill, now St. Andrew Street, Dublin. This was once outside the walls of the city. "Hogges" was a hamlet deriving its name from the Teutonic word 'Hoge' or 'Hoga,' a sepulchral mound. Hoggen Green is now College Green; but the style of Trinity College yet keeps up the memory of its original site. The Irish University on its official seal is designated "juxta Dublin;" and I have in my own library several books wherein the title-page describes Trinity College as "near Dublin." See Introduction to vols. iii., iv., and v. in present vol. on Strafford.

„ 206. 'ffunerals'—Here again we have proof that the usage of the Earl of Cork's day with the nobility was a private interment of the dead in the first instance, and a state funeral sometimes (as in this instance) more than a month later.

Page 207. 'Slewlogher.'—These mountains are in Kerry, on the confines of Cork. Sliabh Luachra in Irish means the 'mountain of rushes.' Here the Blackwater takes its rise. Its upper portion was in Spenser's time known as the Allo—

"Strong Allo tombling from Slewlogher steep"

("Faerie Queene," bk. iv. c. xi. 41) vividly describes its source—so vividly that we feel sure Spenser had visited it.

- „ 208. 'Mr Tristramp whitcomb.'—He was afterwards Mayor of Kinsale. Parliament in 1642 ordered to be printed "The Copy of a Letter from Master Trisham Whitcombe, Major of Kingsale in Ireland, dated the 21 of April, 1642, to his brother Benjamin Whitcombe, Merchant in London." London, 1642 (4°).
- „ 209. 'L. B^e of Kildare.'—William Pilsworth filled the see of Kildare between August 9, 1604, and May 9, 1635.
- „ 211. 'Placata' [= Pacata] Hibernia, was written by the Earl of Totness, but was edited by Sir Thomas Stafford, his reputed son. It was reprinted, with facsimiles of the original engravings, in Dublin in 1810, and was thus made generally accessible.
- „ 215. 'the lyttle Myll meddow.'—Monymore beg (in Irish Monearbeg, i.e., the little meadow) was near the Franciscan friary, Youghal, where was a water-mill, of which the remains are still standing.

Monearnmore, or the great meadow, is the name of a townland in the parish of Cloynepriest, about 5 miles from Youghal. Ibid. 'M Preston'—Thomas Preston held the office of "Ulster" from this date till 1642.

Page 216. 'Ballykeely'—hodie, Ballykinealy, in the parish of Kilmacdonogh, barony of Imokilly.

„ 217. 'marriage in proposicon'—Richard, Lord Dungarvan, married (as before) 5th July, 1635, the Lady Elizabeth Clifford, daughter and heiress of Henry, Earl of Cumberland—the Cliffords owing their (literary) immortality to Samuel Daniel earlier, and Wordsworth later.

„ 218. 'confident' = confidential correspondent. Ibid. 'crueherye in cowrcies'—Crohane (in Irish Cruachan = the round-shapen hill) is a townland in the parish of Kilroan, barony of Courceys, co. Cork.

„ 220. '1000th to procure the office of L. cheef Justice'—Under the Stuarts all honours and offices were vendible, as frequently illustrated in this Diary. Bacon has had scant justice measured to him from forgetfulness of the accepted "use and wont," and of his own pathetic affirmation of integrity.

„ 221. 'my picture in a Tablie' = frame or border.

„ 222. 'M^c Ibrien of Donbarra'—Arra is a district of Tipperary, bordering on the Shannon; and a branch of the great house of O'Brien distinguished themselves from others by writing 'O'Brien Arra.' See p. 225.

„ 224. 'the signe then in Aquarius.'—Every birth in his family, it will have been observed, is marked by the Earl of Cork with its zodiacal sign, savouring of astrology. Even the spear of Shakespeare's ridicule of astrology did not slay the grotesque superstition.

Page 225. 'To L. Clandeboy' = Sir James Hamilton, elected to the peerage of Ireland 4th May, 1622, as Viscount Clandeboye.

* * * Read in related notes, at p. 62, 'O'Baoighill' and 'M. R. I.,' not 'M. A. J. ;' p. 63, 'Kilcredan ;' p. 68, 'joined in one ;' p. 69, s. n., 'Tottenham ;' and p. 82, put hyphen in 'common-place.'
